King Richard the Third

[By WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.]

1597

This reproduction of the first quarto of Shakespeare's play is from a facsimile of the only perfect copy in private hands, which, however, is not at present accessible (see the Introduction to the forthcoming Bibliographical Index to The Tudor Facsimile Texts).

The B.M. copy of the 1597 quarto wants signatures C and D; the Bodley copy is also imperfect. The B.M. 1598 quarto also lacks the title (supplied in facsimile): its copies of other editions—1602, 1612, 1622 and 1634—are complete.

The original facsimile was made (and beautifully done) by the late Mr. Ashbee some forty years ago; fifty copies only were printed, of which nineteen were destroyed. Copies are very scarce indeed.

This, therefore, seemed the most satisfactory way of filling the present gap in first-hand material for a comparative study of some of the so-called "Foundation" plays.

JOHN S. FARMER.

THE TRAGEDY OF King Richard the third.

Containing,
His treacherous Plots against his brother Clarence:
the pittiefull murther of his iunocent nephewes:
his tyrannicall vsurpation: with the whole course of his detested life, and most deserved death.

As it hath been elately Acted by the Right honourable the Lord Chamber-laine his feruants.

AT LONDON
Printed by Valentine Sims, for Andrew Wise, dwelling in Paules Chuch-yard, at the Signe of the Angell.
1597.

Enter Richard Duke of Glocester, Solus.

Ow is the winter of our discontent, Made glorious fummer by this sonne of Yorke: And all the cloudes that lowed vpon our house, In the deepe bosome of the Ocean buried. Now are our browes bound with victorious wreathes, Our bruised armes hung vp for monuments, Our sterne alarmes change to merry meetings, Our dreadfull marches to delightfull measures. Grim-visagde warre, hath smoothde his wrinkled front, And now in steed of mounting barbed steedes, To fright the soules of fearefull adversaries. He capers nimbly in a Ladies chamber, To the lascinious pleasing of a lone. But I that am not shapte for sportiue tricker, Nor made to court an amorous looking glasse, I that am rudely stamptand want loues maiesty, To strut before a wanton ambling Nymph: I that am curtaild of this faire proportion, Cheated of feature by diffembling nature, Deformd, vnfinisht, sent before my time Into this breathing world scarce halfe made vp, And that so lamely and vnfashionable, That dogs barke at me as I halt by them: Why I in this weake piping time of peace Have no delight to passe away the time, Vnlesse to spic my shadow in the sunne, And descant on mine owne deformity: And therefore fince I cannot produe a louer To entertaine these faire well spoken daies.

I am

I ani determined to prooue a villaine, And hate the idle pleasures of these daies: Plots haue I laid inductious dangerous, By drunken Prophesies, libels and dreames, To set my brother Clarence and the King In deadly hate the one against the other. And if King Edward be as true and iust, As I am subtile, false, and trecherous: This day should Clarence closely be mewed up, About a Prophecy which faics that G. Of Edwards heires the murtherers shall be. Dive thoughts downe to my foule, Enter Clavence with Heere Clarence comes, . a gard of men. Brother, good dayes, what meanes this armed gard That waites vpon your grace? Clar. His Maiesty tendering my persons safety hath apro nted This conduct to conuay me to the tower. Glo. Vpon what cause? Cla. Because my name is George. Glo. Alacke my Lord that fault is none of yours, He should for that commit your Godfathers: Obelike his Maiesty hath some intent That you shalbe new christened in the Tower. But whats the matter Clarence may I know? Cla. Yea Richard when I know; for I protelt As yet I doe not, but as I can learne, He harkens after Prophecies and dreames, And from the crosse-rowe pluckes the letter G: And faices a wifard told him that by G, His issue distinherited should be. And for my name of George begins with G. It followes in his thought that I am he. These as I learne and such like toics as these, Haue moved his highnes to commit me now. Glo. Why this it is when men are rulde by women, Tis not the King that sends you to the tower, My Lady Gray his wife, Clarence tis she,

That

That tempers him to this extremity,
Was it not she and that good man of worshippe
Anthony Wooduile her brother there,
That made him send Lord Hastings to the tower,
From whence this present day he is deliuered?
We are not safe Clarence, we are not safe.

Cla. By heaven Ithinke there is no man is securde, But the Queenes kindred and night-walking Heralds. That trudge betwixt the King and Mistresse Shore, Heard ye not what an humble suppliant Lord Hastings was to her for his delivery.

Glo. Humbly complaining to her deity,
Got my Lord Chamberlaine his liberty.
Ile tell you what I thinke it is our way.
If we will keepe in fauour with the King,
To be her men and weare her livery.
Theiealcus oreworne widdow and her felfe,
Since that our brother dubd them gentlewomen,
Are mighty gosips in this monarchy.

Bro. I befeech your Graces both to pardon mer. His Maiesty hath streightly given in charge, That no man shall have private conference, Of what degree soever with his brother.

Glo. Euen so and please your worship Brokenbury, You may pertake of any thing we say:
We speake no treason man, we say the King
Is wise and vertuous, and his noble Queene
Well stroke in yeres, faire and not ieasous,
We say that Shores wise hath a prety foote,
A cherry lippe, a bonny eie, a passing pleasing tongue:
And that the Queenes kindred are made gentlefolks.
How say you sir, can you deny all this?

Bro. With this (my Lord) my selfe have nought to do.

Glo. Naught to do with Mestris Shore, I tell thee fellows

He that doth naught with her, excepting one

Were best he doe it secretly alone.

Bro. Ibeseech your Grace to pardon me, and withal for-Your conserence with the noble Duke. (beare

 A_3

Cla. We know thy charge Brokenbury and will obey,
Glo. We are the Queenes abiects and must obey.
Brother farewell, I will vnto the King,
And whatsoeuer you will imploy me in,
Were it to call King Edwards widdow sister,
I will performe it to enfranchise you,
Meane time this deepe disgrace in brotherhood,
Touches me deeper then you can imagine.
Cla. I know it pleaseth neither of vs well:
Glo. Well, your imprisonment shall not be long,
I will deliuer you or lie for you,
Meane time haue patience.

Cla. Imust perforce; farewell. Exit Clar.

Glo. Go treade the path that thou shalt nere returne, Simple plaine Clarence I doe loue thee so, That I will shortly send thy soule to heaven, I sheaven will take the present at our hands:
But who comes here the new delivered hastings?

Enter Lord Hastings.

Hast. Good time of day vnto my gratious Lord:
Glo. As much vnto my good Lord Chamberlaine:
Well are you welcome to the open aire,
How hath your Lordship brookt imprisonment?
Hast. With patience (noble Lord) as prisoners must:
But I shall live my Lord to give them thankes

That were the cause of my imprisonment.

Glo. No doubt, no doubt, and so shal Clarence too,
For they that were your enemies are his,
And have prevailed as much on him as you.

Hast. More pitty that the Eagle should be mewed, While keihts and bussards prey at liberty.

Glo. What newes abroad?

Haft. No newes so bad abroad as this at home: The King is fickly, weake and melancholy, And his Phisitions seare him mightily.

Glo. Now by Saint Paul this newes is bad indeede. Oh he hath kept an euill diet long, And ouermuch consumed his royall person,

Tis

Tis very grieuous to be thought vpon: What is he in his bed?

Hast. Heis.

Glo. Go you before and I will follow you. He cannot live I hope, and must not die. Till George be packt with post horse vp to heauen. Ile in to vrge his hatred more to Clarence, With lies well steeld with weighty arguments, And if I faile not in my deepe intent, Clarence hath not an other day to live Which done, God take King Edward to his mercy And leave the world for me to buffell in, Forthen Ile marry Warwicks yongest daughter: What though I kild her husband and her father, The readiest way to make the wench amends, Is to become her husband and her father: The which will I, not all so much for love, As for another secret close intent, By marrying her which I must reach vnto. But yet I run before my horse to market: Clarence still breathes, Edward still hues and raignes, When they are gone then must I count my gaines. Exit.

Enter Lady Anne with the hear fe of Harry the 6. Lady An. Set downe set downe your honourable! If honor may be shrowded in a hearse, Whilst I a while obsequiously lament The vntimely fall of vertuous Lancaster: Poore kei-cold figure of a holy King, Pale ashes of the house of Lancaster, Thou bloudlesse remnant of that royall bloud. Be it lawfull that I invocate thy ghost, To heare the lamentations of poore Anne. Wife to thy Edward, to thy flaughtered sonne, Stabd by the selfesame hands that made these holes. Lo in those windowes that let foorth thy life, I powre the helpleffe balme of my poore eies, Curst be the hand that made these fatall holes. Curit be the heart that had the heart to docit.

More direfull hap betide that hated wretch, That makes vs wretched by the death of thee: Than I can wish to adders, spiders, toades, Or any creeping venounde thing that lives. If ever he have child abortive be it, Prodigious and vntimely brought to light: Whose vgly and vnnaturall aspect, May fright the hopefull mother at the view. If cuer he have wife, let her be made As miserable by the death of him. As I am made by my poore Lord and thee. Come now towards Chertley with your holy loade. Taken from Paules to be interred there: And still as you are weary of the waight, Rest you whiles I lament King Henries corfe. Enter Glocester.

Glo. Stay you that beare the corfe and fet it downe.

La. What blacke magitian conjures up this fiend,

To from deposited charteship deeder.

To stop deuoted charitable deedes,

Gb. Villaine set downe the corse, or by S. Paule, Ile make a corse of him that disobeies.

Gent. My Lord, stand backe and let the coffin passe.

Glo. Vinnanerd dog, stand thou when I command,
Aduance thy halbert higher than my brest,
Or by Saint Paul He strike thee to my soote,
And spurne vpon thee begger forthy boldnes.

La. What doe you tremble are you all afraid?
Alas, I blame you not, for you are mortall.
And mortall eies cannot endure the diuell.
Auaunt thou dreadfull minister of hell,
Thou had? but power ouer his mortall body,
His soule thou canst not have, therefore be gone.

Glo. Sweete Saintsfor Charity be not so curst.

La. Foule Diuell for Gods sake hence & trouble vs not, For thou hast made the happy earth thy hell: Fild it with cursing cries and deepe exclaimes. If thou delight to view thy hainous deedes, Behold this patterne of thy butcheries.

Oh gentlemen see, see dead Henries woundes,
Open their congeald mouthes and bleede a fresh.
Blush blush thou lumpe of soule deformity,
For tis thy presence that exhales this bloud,
From cold and empty veines where no bloud dwells.
Thy deed inhumane and vnnaturall,
Prouokes this deluge most vnnaturall.
Oh God which this bloud madest, reuenge his death,
Oh earth which this bloud drinkst, reuenge his death:
Either heauen with lightning strike the murtherer dead,
Or earth gape open wide and eate him quicke.
As thou doest swallow up this good Kings bloud,
Which his hell-gouernd arme hath butchered.
Glo. Lady you know no rules of charity,
Which renders good for bad, blessings for curses.

Lady Villaine thou knowest no law of God nor man: No beast so fierce but knowes some touch of pitty.

Glo. But I know none, and therefore am no beast. Lady Ohwonderfull when Divels tell the troth.

Glo, More wonderfull when Angels are fo angry

Voutsafe deuine perfection of a woman, Of these supposed euils to give me leave, By circumstance but to acquite my selfe.

La. Vouchsafe defused infection of a man, For these knowne euils but to give me leave, By circumstance to curse thy cursed selfe.

Glo. Fairer then tongue can name thee, let me have

Some patient leisure to excuse my selfe.

La. Fouler then heart can thinke thee thou canst make No excuse current but to hang thy selfe.

Glo. By such despaire I should accuse my selfe.

Lad. And by despairing shouldst thou stand excused, For doing worthy vengeance on thy selfe,

Which didst vnworthy flaughter vpon others.

Glo. Say that I flew them not.

La. Why then they are not dead,

But dead they are, and divelish save by thee.

Glo. I did not kill your husband.

La. Why then he is aliue.

Glo. Nav, he is dead, and flaine by Edwards hand.

La. In thy foule throat thou lieft, Queene Margaret faw Thy bloudy faulchion smoking in his bloud. The which thou once didst bend against her brest, But that thy brothers beat aside the point.

Glo. I was prouoked by her slaunderous tongues. Which laid their guilt vpon my guiltlesse shoulders.

La. Thou wast prouoked by thy bloudy minde. Which never dreams on ought but butcheries, Didst thou not kill this King. Glo. I grant yea.

La, Doest grant me hedghogge then god grant metoo Thou maiest be damnd for that wicked deede,

Oh he was gentle, milde, and vertuous.

Glo. The fitter for the King of Heauen that hath him.
La. He is in heauen where thou shalt never come.

Glo. Let him thanke me that holpe to fend him thither, For he was fitter for that place then earth.

La. And thou vnfit for any place but hell.

Glo. Yes one place els ifyou will heare me name it.

La. Some dungeon. Glo. Your bedchamber.
La. Ill rest betide the chamber where thou liest.

Gle. So will it Madame till I lie with you,

La. Ihope so.

Glo. I know so, but gentle Lady Anne, To leave this keen incounter of our wits, And fall somewhat into a slower methodes Is not the causer of the timeles deaths, Of these Plantagenets Henry and Edward, As blamefull as the executioner.

I. Thou art the cause and most accurst effect.

Glo, Your beauty was the cause of that effect.
Your beauty which did haunt me in my sleepe:
To undertake the death of all the world
So I might rest one houre in your sweete bosome.

La. If I thought that I tell thee homicide,
These vailes should rend that beauty from my cheekes.

Glo. These vies could never indure sweet beauties wrack,
You

You should not blemish them if I stood by: As all the world is cheered by the sonne, So I by that, it is my day, my life.

La. Blacke night overshade thy day, and death thy life. Glo. Curse not thy selfe faire creature, thou art both.

La. I would I were to be reuenged on thee.

Glo. It is a quarrell most vnnaturall, To be reuengd on him that loueth you.

La. It is a quarrell iust and reasonable, To be reusingd on him that slew my husband.

Glo. He that bereft thee Lady of thy husband,

Did it to helpe thee to a better husband.

La. His better doth not breath vpon the earth.

Glo. Go to, he lives that loves you better then he could.

La. Name him. Glo. Plantagenet.

La. Why that was hee.

Glo. The selfesame name but one of better nature.

La. Where is he.

Shee spitteth at him.

Glo. Heere,

Why doest thou spitte at me.

La. Would it were mortall poison for thy sake. Glo. Neuer came poison from so sweete a place.

La. Neuer hung poison on a fouler toade,

Out of my light thou doest infect my cies.

Glo. Thine cies sweete Lady have infected mine.

La. Would they were basiliskes to strike thee dead.

Glo. I would they were that I might die at once, For now they kill me with a liuing death:

Those eies of thine from mine have drawen salt teares, Shamd their aspect with store of childish drops:

Incuer sued to friend nor enemy,

My tongue could neuer learne (weete foothing words:

But now thy beauty is proposed my fee:

My proud heart sues and prompts my tongue to speake. Teach not thy lips such scorne, for they were made

For killing Lady not for such contempt. If thy revengefull heart cannot forgue,

Lohere I lend thee this sharpe pointed sword:

B 2

Which

Which if thou please to hide in this true bosome,
And let the soule forth that adoreth thee:
Ilaie it naked to the deadly stroke,
And humbly beg the death vpon my knee.
Nay, doe not pawse, twas I that kild your husband,
But twas thy beauty that prouoked me:
Nay now dispatch twas I that kild King Henry:
But twas thy heauenly face that set me on: Here she lets fall
Take vp the sword againe or take vp me. the sword.

La. Arise dissembler, though I wish thy death.

I will not be the executioner.

Glo. Then bid me kill my selfe, and I will doe it:

Ia. I haue already.

Glo. Tush that was in thy rage:
Speake it againe, and even with the word,
That hand which for thy love did kill thy love,
Shall for thy love, kill a farre truer love:
To both their deaths shalt thou be accessary.

La. I would I knew thy heart. Glo. Tis figured in my tongue. La. I feare me both are falle.

Glo. Then neuer was man true,

La. Well, well, put vp your sword.

Glo. Say then my peace is made.

La. That shall you know hereafter. Glo. But shall I live in hope.

La. Allmen I hope live so.

Glo. Voutsafe to weare this ring. La. To take is not to give.

Glo. Lookehow this ring incompasseth thy finger, Even so thy breast incloseth my poore heart.

Weare both of them for both of them are thine,
And if thy poore devoted suppliant may
But begone favour at thy gratious hand,
Thou doest confirme his happines for ever.

La. What is it?

Glo. That it would please thee leave these sad designes, To him that hath more cause to be a mourner,

And

And prefently repaire to Crosbie place,
Where after I have folemnly interred
At Chertsie monastery this noble King,
And wethis grave with my repentant teares,
I will with all expedient dutie see you:
For divers vnknowne reasons, I beseech you
Grant me this boone.

La. With all my heart, and much it ioies me too,
To fee you are become so penitent:
Tressill and Barkley go along with me.
Glo. Bid me farewell.

La. Tis more then you deserue:
But since you teach me how to flatter you,
Imagine I haue said farewell already.

Glo. Sirs take vp the corfe.

Ser. Towards Chertfie noble Lord.

Glo. Noto white Friers there attend my comming.

Exit.

Was cuer wonian in this humor woed, Exeunt. manet Gl. Was euer woman in this humor wonne: He haue her, but I will not keepe her long. What I that kild her husband and his father. To take her in her hearts extreamest hate: With curses in her mouth, teares in her eies. The bleeding witnesse of her hatred by, Hauing God, her conscience, and these bars against me: And Inothing to backe my fuite at all, But the plaine Diuell and dissembling lookes, And yet to win her all the world to nothing. Hah Hath the forgot already that braue Prince Edward, her Lord whom I somethree months fince, Stabd in my angry moode at Tewsbery, A sweeter and a louelier gentleman, Framd in the prodigality of nature: Young, valiant, wife, and no doubt right royall, The spacious world cannot againe affoord: And will she yet debase her eyes on me That cropt the golden prime of this sweete Prince, And made her widdowto a wofull bed.

On

On me whose all not equals Edwards moity, On me that halt, and am vnihapen thus. My Dukedome to a beggerly denier. I doe mistake my person all this while, Vpon my life the findes, although I cannot My selfe, to be a merueilous proper man. Ile be at charges for a looking glasse, And entertaine some score or two of taylers, To study fashions to adorne my body. Since I am crept in fauour with my felfe, I will maintaine it with some little cost: But first 1le turne you fellow in his graue, And then returne lamenting to my loue. Shine out faire funne till I have bought a glaffe, That I may fee my shadow as I passe. Enter Queene, Lord Riners, Gray.

Ri. Haue patience Madame, theres no doubt his Maie-Will soone recouer his accustomed health. (stie

Gray In that you brooke it, ill it makes him worfe, Therefore for Gods sake entertaine good comfort, And cheere his grace quick and mery words,

Ry. No other harme but losse of such a Lord.

Gr. The losse of fuch a Lord includes all harme.

Gr. If he heavens have bleft you with a goodly fonne,

To be your comforter when he is gone.

On he is young, and his minority
Is not you to the trust of Rich Glocester.

Is put vnto the trust of Rich. Glocesten Aman that loues not me nor none of you.

Ri. Is it concluded he shall be protector?
24. It is determinde, not concluded yet.

But so it must be if the King miscarry. (Enter Buck, Darby Gr. Herecomethe Lords of Buckingham and Darby.

Buck. Good time of day vnto your royall grace.

Dar. God make your Maiesty joyfull as you have been.

The Counteste Richmond good my Lo: of Darby, To your good praiers will scarcely say, Amen: Yet Darby notwithstanding, shees your wife.

And

And loues not me, be you good Lo, assurde I hate not you for her proud arrogance. Dar. I doe beseech you either not beseeue

The envious flaunders of her falle accusers,

Or if she be accused in true report,

Beare with her weakenes which I thinke proceedes From wayward ficknesse, and no grounded malice.

Ry. Saw you the King to day, my Lo: of Darby?

Dar. But now the Duke of Buckingham and 1

Came from visiting his Maiesty.

Qu. With likelihood of his amendment Lords?

Buc. Madame good hope, his Grace speakes cheerfully.

Qu. God grant him health, did you confer with him.

Buc. Madame we did: He desires to make attonement Betwixt the Duke of Glocester and your brothers,

And betwixt them and my Lotd chamberlaine, And fent to warne them to his royall presence.

Qu. Would all were well, but that will neuerbe.

I feare our happines is arthe highest. Enter Glocester.

Glo. They doe me wrong and I will not endure it, Who are they that complaines vnto the King, That I forfooth am sterne and love them not: By holy Paul they love his grace but lightly, That fill his cares with such discentious rumors: Because I cannot flatter and speake faire, Smile in mens faces, smoothe, decesue and cog. Ducke with french nods and apish courtesse, I must be held a rankerous enimy.

Cannot a plaine man live and thinke no harme, But thus his simple truth must be abusses.

By silken slie insimuating jackes?

Ry. To whom in all this presence speakes your Grace?
Glo. To thee that hast nor honesty nor grace,

When have I injured thee, when done thee wrongs Or thee or thee or any of your faction:

A plague vpon you all. His toyall person (Whom God preserve better then you would wish)

Cannot be quiet scarce a breathing while,

But

But you must trouble him with lewd complaints. Qu. Brother of Glocester, you mistake the matter: The King of his owne royall disposition, And not prouokt by any suiter else, Ayming belike at your interiour hatred, Which in your outward actions shewes it selfe, Against my kindred, brother, and my selfe: Makes him to fend that thereby he may gather The ground of your ill will and to remoue it. Glo. I cannot tell, the world is growen so bad That wrens make pray where Eagles dare not pearch, Since euery lacke became a Gentleman: Theres many a gentle person made a lacke. Qu, Come come, we know your meaning brother Gl. You enuy my aduancement and my friends, God graunt we neuer may have neede of you. Glo. Meane time God grants that we have neede of you. Our brother is imprisoned by your meanes, My felfe difgract, and the nobility Held in contempt, whilst many faire promotions, Are daily giuen to enoble those That scarce some two daies since were worth a noble. Qu. By him that raisde me to this carefull height,! From that contented hap which I enjoyd, I neuer did incense his Maiesty Against the Duke of Clarence: but have beene, An earnest advocate to pleade for him. My Lord you doe me shamefull injury, Falsely to draw me in these vile suspects. Glo. You may deny that you were not the cause. Of my Lord Haltings late imprisonment. Ryu. She may my Lord. Glo. She may Lo: Ryuers, why who knowes not fo? She may doe more Sir then denying that: She may helpe you to many faire preferments, And then deny her ayding hand therein, And lay those honours on your high deserts, What may the not, the may, yea marry may the.

Ry. What mary may she.

66. What mary may she, marry with a King,

A batchelor, a handsome stripling too.

Iwis your Grandam had a worser match.

Your blunt vpbraidings and your bitter scoffes,
By heaven I will acquaint his Maiesty
With those grose taunts I often have endured:
I had rather be a countrey servant maids

Then a great Queene with this condition.

To be thus taunted, scorned, and baited at:

Small ioy haue I in being Englands Queene.

Margaret.

Qu. Mar. And lesned be that smal, God I beseech thee,

Thy honour, state, and scate is due to me.

Gle. What?threat you me with telling of the King, Tell him and spare not, looke what I have said,

I will auouch in presence of the King: /

Tis time to speake, my paines are quite forgot.

Qu. Mar. Out diuell I remember them too well, Thou slewest my husband Henry in the tower, And Edward my poore sonne at Teuxbery.

Glo. Ere you were Queene, year or your husband King,

I was a packhorse in his great affaires, A weeder out of his proud aduersaries, A liberall rewarder of his friends:

To royalize his bloud I spilt mine owne.

Que Mar. Yea and much better bloud then his orthine.

Glo. In all which time you and your husband Gray, Were factious for the house of Lancaster:

And Rangers Gravers you, was not your husband

And Ryuers, so were you, was not your husband. In Margarets battaile at Saint Albones slaine:

Let me put in your mindes, if yours forget
What you have beene ere now, and what you are,

Withall, what I have been, and what I am.

Qu. Ma. A murtherous villaine, and so still thou art.
Glo. Poore Clarence did forsake his father Warwicke,

Yea and forswore himselfe (which Iesu pardon.)

Qu. Ma. Which God revenge,

Clo.

Glo. To fight on Edwards party for the crowne, And for his meede poore Lo: he is mewed vppe: I would to God my heart were flint like Edwards, Or Edwards foft and pittifull like mine, I am too childish, foolish for this world.

Qu. Ma. Hie thee to hell for shame and leave the world

Thou Cacodemon, there thy kingdome is.

Ry. My Lo: of Glocester in those busie daies. Which here you wrge to proue vs enemies, We followed then our Lo: our lawfull King, So should we you if you should be our King,

Glo. If I should be? I had rather be a pedler, Farre be it from my heart the thought of it.

Qu. As little loy my Lord as you suppose You should enloy, were you this countries King, As little loy may you suppose in me, That I enloy being the Queene thereof.

For I am the and altogether in yleffe.
I canno longer hold me patient:
Heare me you wrangling Pyrats that fallout,
In sharing that which you have pild from me:
Which of you trembles not that lookes on me?
If not, that I being Queene you bow like subjects,
Yet that by you deposide you quake like rebels:
Ogentle villaine doe not turne away.

Glo. Foule wrinckled witch what makft thou in my fight?

Q. Ma. But repetition of what thou hast mard, That will! I make before I let thee go:
A husband and a son thou owest to me.
And thou a kingdome, all of you allegeance:
The sorrow that I have by right is yours.
And all the pleasures you vsurpe are mine.

Glo. The curse my noble father laid on thee,
When thou didst crowne his warlike browes with paper,
And with thy scorne drewst rivers from his eies,
And then to drie them gau'st the Duke a clout,
Steept in the fault esselled of pretty Rutland:

His

His curses then from bitternes of soule Denounft, against thee, are all fallen vpon thee. And God, not we, hath plagde thy bloudy deede. a Qu. So just is God to right the innocent. Hast. O ferue me well, and teach your felues that duty.
Dorf. Dispute not with her, she is lunatique.

O. M. Peace Master Marques you are malapert, Your fire-new stampe of honour is scarse currant: O that your young nobility could judge, What twere to loose it and be miserable: They that stand high have many blast to shake them. And if they fall they dash themselves to pieces.

Glo. Good counsell mary, learne it learne it Marques.

Der. It toucheth you my Lo: asmuch as me.

Glo. Yea and much more . but I was borne so high, Our aiery buildeth in the Cedars top,
And dallies with the winde, and scornes the sunne.

Qu M. And turnes the fun to shade, alas, alas, Witnes my son, now in the shade of death, Whose bright outshining beames, thy cloudy wrath Hath in eternal darkenes foulded vp:
Your aiery buildeth in our aieries nest,
O God that seest it, doe not suffer it:
As it was wonne with bloud, lost be it so.

Buck. Haue done for shame, if not for charity.

Qu.M. Vrge neither charity nor shame to me,
Vncharitably with me haue you dealt.

And shamefully by you my hopes are butcherd,
My charity is outrage, life my shame,
And in my shame, still live my forrowes rage.

Buck. Haue done.

O.M. O Princely Buckingham, I will kiffe thy hand In figure of league and amity with thee:

Now faire befall thee and thy Princely house,
Thy garments are not spotted with our bloud,
Nor thou within the compasse of my curse.

Buc. Nor no one here, for curses never passe

The lips of those that breath them in the aire.

Q.M. Ile not believe but they ascend the skie,
And there awake gods gentle sleeping peace.

O Buckingham beware of yonder dog,
Looke when he fawnes, he bites, and when he bites,

C 3

His venome tooth will rackle thee to death, Haue not to doe with him, beware of him: Sinne, death and hell, haue set their markes on him, And all their ministers attend on him.

Glo. What doth the fay my Lo: of Buckingham? Buck. Nothing that I respect my gratious Lord.

Qu. M. What does thou scorne me for my gentle counAnd sooth the divell that I warne thee from: (fell,

Hast. My haire doth stand on end to heave her curses. Ryn. And so doth mine, I wonder shees at liberty.

Glo. I cannot blame her by gods holy mother, She hath had too much wrong, and I repent My part thereof that I have done.

Qu., Ineuer did her any to my knowledge:
Glo: But you have all the vantage of this wrong.
Iwas too hoat to doe some body good,
That is too cold in thinking of it now:
Marry as for Clarence he is well repaid,
He is franckt vp to fatting for his paines,
God pardon them that are the cause of it.
Ryu. A vertuous and a Christianlike conclusion,

To pray for them that have done scathe to vs. Glo. So doe I ever being well advised, For had I curst, now I had curst my selfe. Cates. Madam his Maiesty doth call for you,

And for your Grace, and you my noble Lo:

Qu Catesby we come, Lords will you go with vs.

Ry. Madame we will attend your grace. Exeunt man.Rj.

Glo. Idoe the wrong, and first began to braule The secret mischieses that I set abroach, I lay vnto the grieuous charge of others: Clarence whom I indeed have laid in darkenes, I doe beweepe to many simple guls:

Name-

Namely to Hastings, Darby, Buckingham, And say it is the Queene and her allies, That stirre the King against the Duke my brother. Now they beleeve me, and withall whet me, To be reuenged on Ryuers, Vaughan, Gray: But then I figh, and with a piece of scripture. Tell them that God bids vs doe good for euill: And thus I clothe my naked villany, With old odde ends stolne out of holy writ, And seeme a Saint when most I play the Diuell: But fost here come my executioners. Enter Executioners. How now my hardy frout resolued mates, Are you now going to dispatch this deede. Execu. We are my Lord, and come to have the warrant, That we may be admitted where he is.

Glo. It was well thought vpon. I have it here about me, When you have done repaire to Crosby place; But firs, be sudden in the execution, Withall obdurate, doe not heare him pleade. For Clarence is well spoken, and perhaps, May, moue your harts to pitty if you marke him.

Exec. Tush feare not my Lo: we will not stand to prate, Talkers are no good doers be alfured: We come to vie our hands, and not our tongues. Gl. Your eles drop militones when fooles eles drop tears,

I like you lads, about your bufines. Enter Clarence, Brokenbury.

Brok. Why lookes your grace so heavily to day? Clar. Oh I have past a miserable night, So full of vgly lights, of galtly dreames, That as I am a christian faithfull man. I would not ipend another fuch a night, Though twere to buy a world of happy daies, So full of dismall terror was the time.

Brok. What was your dreame, I long to heare you tell it. Cla. Me thoughts I was imbarkt for Burgundy. And inmy company my brother Glocester, Who from my cabbine tempted me to walke,

 ${f V}$ pon

V pon the hatches thence we lookt toward England, And cited vp athousand fearefull times, During the wars of Yorke and Lancaster: That had befallen vs, as we pactalong, Vpon the giddy footing of the hatches: Me thought that Glocester stumbled, and in stumbling Stroke me that thought to Itay him ouer board. Into the tumbling billowes of the maine. Lord, Lord, me thought what paine it was to drowne, What dreadfull noise of waters in my eares, What vgly fights of death within my cies: Methought I sawe a thousand fearefull wracks. Ten thousand men, that fishes gnawed vpon, Wedges of gold, great anchors, heapes of pearle, Inestimable stones, vnualued Iewels, Some lay in dead mens sculs, and in those holes. Where eies did once inhabite, there were crept As twere in scorne of cies reflecting gems, Which woed the flimy bottome of the deepe And mockt the dead bones that lay scattered by. Brok. Had you such leifure in the time of death, To gaze upon the fecrets of the deepe?

Clar. Methought I had, for still the enuious foud Kept in my soule, and would not let it footh, To seeke the emptie vast and wandering aire, But smothered it within my panting bulke, Which almost burst to belchit in the sea.

Brok. Awakt you not with this fore agony.
Cla. O no, my dreame was lengthned after life,
O then began the tempest to my soule,
Who past methought the melancholy soud,
With that grim ferriman, which Poets write of,
V nto the kingdome of perpetual night:
The first that there did greet my stranger soule,
Wasmy great father in law renowmed Warwicke,
Who cried alowd what scourge for periury.
Can this darke monarchy affoord false Clarence,
And so he vanisht, then came wandring by,

A Sha-

A shadow like an angell in bright haire,
Dabled in bloud, and he squakt out alowd,
Clarence is come, false, fleeting, periurd Clarence.
That stabd me in the field by Teuxbery:
Seaze on him suries, take him to your torments,
With that me thoughts a legion of soule stends
Enuirond me about, and howled in mine eares
Such hideous cries, that with the very noise
I trembling, wakt, and for a season after
Could not believe but that I was in hell,
Such terrible impression made the dreame.

Bro, No marueile my Lo: though it affirs hted you,

I promife you, I am afraid to heare you tell it.

Cla. O Brokenbury I have done those things,
Which now beare euidence against my soule
For Edwards sake, and see how he requites me.
I pray thee gentle keeper stay by me,

My foule is heavy, and I faine would fleepe.

Bro. I will my Lo: God give your Grace good reft,
Sorrowe breake feafons, and reposing howers
Makes the night morning, and the noonetide night,
Princes have but their titles for their glories,
An outward honour, for an inward toile,
And for vnfelt imagination,
They often feele a world of restlesse cares:
So that betwixt their titles and lowe names.
Theres nothing differs but the outward fame.

The murtherers enter.

In Gods name what are you, and how came you hither?

Execu. I would speake with Clarence, and I came hither Bro. Yea, are you so briefe. (on my legs. 2 Exe. O sir, it is better to be briefe then tedious, Shew him our commission, talke no more. He readeth it. Bro. I am in this commanded to deliuer The noble Dûke of Clarence to your hands, I will not reason what is meant hereby, Because I wilbe guiltles of the meaning: Here are the keies, there sits the Duke a sleepe,

D

He to his Maiesty, and certifie his Grace. That thus I have resignd my charge to you.

Exe. Doe so, it is a point of wisedome.

- 2 What shall I stab him as he sleepes?
- 1 No then he will fay twas done cowardly When he wakes.

2. When he wakes,

Why foole he shall never wake till the judgement day.

I Why then he will Gay, we stabd him sleeping.

2 The viging of that word Indgement, hath bred A kind of remorfe in me.

I What art thou afraid.

2 Not to kill him having a warrant for it, but to be dand For killing him, from which no warrant can defend vs.

1 Backe to the Duke of Glocester, tell him so.

2 I pray thee stay a while, I hope my holy humor will Change, twas wont to hold me but while one would tel xx.

I How doest thouseele thy selfenow? (in me.

2 Faith some certaine dregs of conscience are yet with 1 Remember our reward when the deede is done.

2 Zounds he dies, I had forgot the reward.

I Where is thy conscience now?

2 In the Duke of Glocesters purse.

I So when he opens his purse to give vs our reward, Thy conscience slies out.

2 Let it go, theres few or none will entertaine it,

I How if it come to thee againe?

2 Ile not meddle with it, it is a dangerous thing, It makes a man a coward: A man cannot steale, But it accuse the him: he cannot sweare, but it checks him: He cannot lie with his neighbors wife, but it detects Him. It is a blushing shamefast spirit, that mutinies. In a mans bosome: it fils one full of obstacles, It made me once restore a purse of gold that I found, It beggers any man that keepes it: it is turned out of all Townes and Citties for a dangerous thing, and every Man that meanes to live wel, endevors to trust to To himselse, and to live without it,

1 Zounds

I Zounds it is euen now at my elbowe perswading me Not to kill the Duke.

2 Take the diuell in thy minde, and beleeue him not,

He would infinuate with thee to make thee figh.

I Tut, I am strong in fraud, he cannot preuaile with me, Iwarrant thee.

2 Spoke like a tall fellow that respects his reputation,

Come shall we to this geere.

I Take him ouer the costard with the hilts of thy sword, And then we wil chop him in the malmsey But in the next

C4. In Gods name what art thou.

2 Aman as you are,

Cla. Bnt not as I am, royall.

2 Nor you as we are, loyall.

Cla. Thy voice is thunder, but thy lookes are humble-

2 My voice is now the Kings, my lookes mine owne. Cla. How darkly, and how deadly doest thou speaker

Tellme who are you, wherefore come you hither?

Am. To, to, to.

Cla. To murther me. Am. I.

Cla. You scarcely have the hearts to tell me so; And therefore cannot have the hearts to doe it. Wherein my friends have Iossended you?

I Offended vs you have not, but the King.

Cla. I shalbe reconcild to him againe.

2 Neuer my Lo: therfore prepare to die.

Cla. Are you cald foorth from out a world of men

To flay the innocent? what is my offence.
Where are the euidence that doe accuse mes
What lawfull quest have given their verdist vp
Vnto the frowning Judge, or who pronounst
The bitter sentence of poore Clarence death,
Before I be convict by course of law?

To threaten me with death, is most vnlawfuil: I charge you as you hope to have redemption, By Christs deare bloud shed for our grieuous sinnes, That you depart and lay no hands on me, The deede you vndertake is damnable.

I What we will doe, we doe vpon command.
2 And he that hath commanded, is the King.
Clar. Erronious Vassaile, the great King of Kings,
Hathin the tables of his law commanded,
That thou shalt doe no murder, and wilt thou then
Spurne at his edict, and fulfill a mans?
Take heede, for he holds vengeance in his hands,
To harle vpon their heads that breake his law.

2 And that same vengeance doth he throw on thee, For false forswearing, and for murder too:
Thou didst receive the holy sacrament,
To fight in quarell of the house of Lancaster.

And like a traitor to the name of God Didst breake that vowe, and with thy trecherous blade, Vnripst the bowels of thy soueraignes sonne.

Whom thou wert sworne to cherish and defend.

How canst thou vrge Gods dreadfull Law to vs.

When thou hast broke it in so deare degree?

Cla. Alas, for whose sake did I that ill deede, For Edward, for my brother, for his sake: Why sirs, he sends ye not to murder me for this. For in this sinne he is as deepe as I: If God will be reuenged for this deede. Take not the quarrell from his powerfull arme, He needes no indirect, nor lawlesse course, To cut off those that have offended him.

I Who made thee then a bloudy minister, When gallant springing braue Plantagenet, That Princely Nouice was stroke dead by thee?

Cla, My brothers love, the divelland my rage.

I Thy brothers love, the divell and thy fault Have brought vs hither now to murder thee.

Cla. Ohif you loue my brother, hate not me,

I am his brother, and I loue him well: If you be hirde for meede, go backe againe, And I will fendyou to my brother Glocester, Who will reward you better for my life, Then Edward will for tydings of my death.

2 You are deceiu'd, your brother Glocester hates you.

Cla. Oh no, he loues me, and he holds me deare, Go you to him from me.

Am. I, so we will.

Cla. Tell him, when that our princely father Yorke, Bleft his three sonnes with his victorious arme:
And charged vs from his soule, to loue each other,
He little thought of this deuided friendship.
Bid Glocester thinke of this, and he will weepe.

Am. I, milstones as he lessond vs to weepe. Cla. O doe not flaunder him for he is kind.

I Right as fnow in haruest, thou deceiu'st thy selfe, Tis he hath sent vs hither now to slaughter thee.

Cla. It cannot be, for when I parted with him, Hehugd me in his armes, and fwore with fobs.
That he would labour my deliuery.

2 Why so he doth, now he delivers thee, From this worlds thraldome, to the ioies of heaven,

I Makes peace with God, for you mult die my Lo: Cla. Hast thou that holy feeling in thy soule,
To counsell me to make my peace with God;
And art thou yet to thy owne soule so biinde,
That thou wilt war with God, by murdring me?
Ah sirs, consider, he that set you on
To doe this deede, will hate you for this deede.

2 What shall we doe?

Cla. Relentand saue your foules.

r Relent, tis cowardly and womanish?
cla. Not to relent, is beastly, sauage, diuelish,
My friend, I spie some pitty in thy lookes:
Oh if thy eye be not a flatterer,
Come thou on my side, and intreat for me,
A begging Prince, what begger pitties not?

I I thus, and thus: if this wil not serue, Hestabs him. Ile chop thee in the malmesey But, in the next roome.

2 Abloudy deede and desperately performd, How faine like Pilate would I wash my hand, Of this most grieuous guilty murder done.

I Why doest thou not helpe me,

By heavens the Duke shall know how slacke thou are.

2 I would he knew that I had faued his brother. Take thou the fee, and tell him what I fay, For I repent me that the Duke is flaine. Exit.

I, So doe not I, go coward as thou art: Now must I hide his body in some hole, Vintill the Duke take order for his buriall: And when I have my meede I must away, For this will out and here I must not stay.

For this will out and here I mult not stay. Exeunt.

Enter King, Queene, Hastings, Ryners, Dorcet, &c.

Kin. So, now I have done a good daies worke,
You peeres continue this vnited league,
I every day expectan Embassage
From my redeemer to redeeme me hences
And now in peace my soule shall part from heaven,
Since I have set my friends at peace on earth:
Rivers and Hastings, take each others hand,
Diffemble not your hatred, sweare your love.

And with my hand I seale my true hearts loue.

Haft. So thrive I as I truely (weare the like.

Kin. Take heede you dally not before your King, Least he that is the supreme King of Kings, Confound your hidden falshood and award Either of you to be the others end.

Hast. So prosper I, as I sweare perfect loue.
Riu. And I, as I loue hastings with my heart.

Kin. Madame, your selfe are not exempt in this, Nor your son Dorset, Buckingham nor you, You have beene factious one against the other: Wise, love Lo: Hastings, let him kisse your hand, And what you doe, doe it vnfainedly. Q. Here Hastings I will never more remember

Our

Our former hatred so thrive I and mine.

Dor. This enterchange of love, There protest,

Vpon my part shalbe vnuiolable.

Hast. And so sweare I my Lord.

Kin. Now princely Buckingham feale thou this league

With thy embracements to my wives allies,

And make me happy in your vnity.

Buc. When ever Buckingham doth turne his hate,
On you or yours, but with all duteous love
Doth cherish you and yours, God punish me
With hate, in those where I expect most love,
When I have most neede to imploy a friend,
And most assured that he is a friend,
Deepe, hollow, trecherous, and full of guile
Be he ynto me, this doe I begge of God,
When I am cold in zeale to you or yours.

Kin. A pleasing cordial Princely Buckingham, Is this thy vow vnto my sickly heart: There wanteth now our brother Glocester here,

To make the perfect period of this peace, Enter Glocest.

Bue. And in good time here comes the noble Duke.

Glo. Good morrow to my soueraigne King & Queene,

And Princely peeres, a happy time of day

Kin. Happy indeede as we have spent the day:

Brother we have done deedes of charity: Made peace of enmity, faire love of hate,

Betweene these swelling wrong insenced peeres.

Amongst this princely heape, if any here
By false Intelligence or wrong surmise,
Hold me a foe, if I vnwittingly or in my rage,
Haue ought committed that is hardly borne
By any in this presence, I desire
To reconcile me to his friendly peace,
Tis death to me to be at enmity
I hate it, and desire all good mens loue.
First Madam I intreate true peace of you,
Which I will purchase with my dutious service.

Of you my noble Coolen Buckingham, If euer any grudge were logde betweene vs. Of you Lo: Riuers, and Lord Gray of you, That all without defert haue frownd on me, Dukes, Earles, Lords, gentlemen, indeed of all: I doe not know that English man aliue, With whom my soule is any iotte at oddes, More then the infant that is borne to night: I thauke my God for my humility.

I would to God all strifes were well compounded.

My sour aigne liege I doe beseech your Maiesty,

To take our brother Clarence to your Grace.

Glo. Why Madame, have I offred love for this, To be thus formed in this royall presence? Who knowes not that the noble Duke is dead, You doe him injury to scorne his corse.

Ryu. Who knowes not he is dead? who knowes he is?

Buck. Looke I so pale Lo: Dorset as the rest?

Dor. I my good L:and no one in this presence,

But his red couler hath forfooke his cheekes.

Kin. Is Clarence dead, the order was reuerft.

Glo. But he poore foule by your first order died,
And that a wingled Mercury did beare,
Some tardy cripple bore the countermaund,
That came too lag to see him buried:
God grant that some lesse noble, and lesse loyall,
Necrer in bloudy thoughts, but not in blond:
Deserve not worse then wretched Clarence did,
And yet go currant from suspicion.

Enter Darby.

Dar. A boone my foueraigne for my seruice done.

Kin. I pray thee peace, my soule is full of sorrow.

Dar. I will not rise vnlesse your highnesse grant.

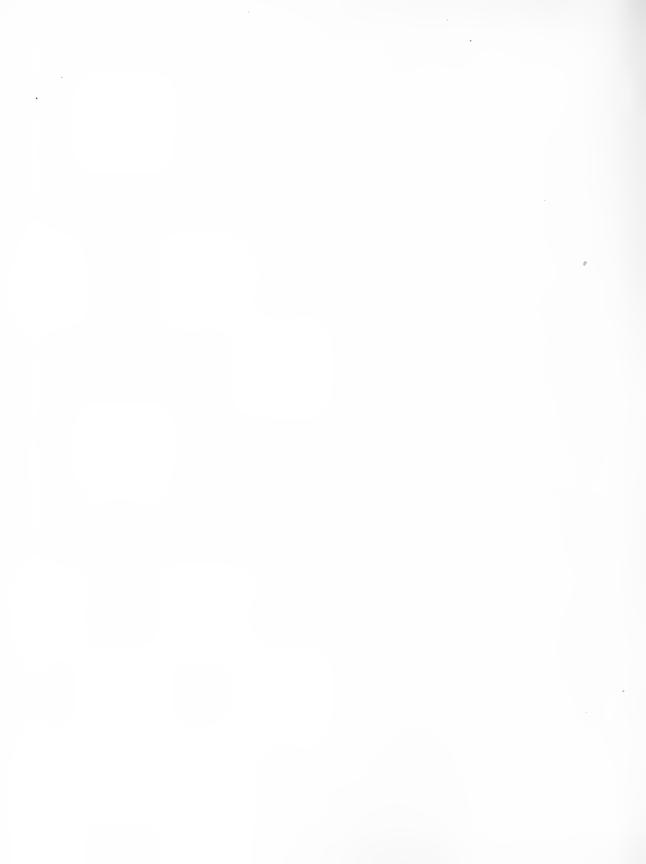

Kin. Then speake at once, what is it thou demaundst.

Dar. The forfeit soueraigne of my servants life, Who slew to day a riotous gentleman.

Lately attendant on the Duke of Norfolke.

Kin. Haue.

Kin. Haue I a tongue to doome my brothers death, And shall the same give pardon to a slave? My brother flew no man, his fault was thought, And yet his punishment was cruell death. Who fued to me for him? who in my rage, Kneeld at my feete and bad me be aduisde? Who spake of Brotherhood? who of loue? Who told me how the poore foule did for fake The mighty Warwicke, and did fight for me: Who tolde me in the field by Teuxbery, When Oxford had me downe, he rescued me, And faid deare brother, live and be a King? Who told me when we both lay in the field, Frozen almost to death, how he did lappe me Euen in his owne garments, and gaue himselfe All thin and naked to the numbcold night? All this from my remembrance brutish wrath Sinfully puckt, and not a man of you Had so much grace to put it in my minde. But when your carters, or your waighting vallailes Haue done a drunken flaughter, and defalte The pretious image of our deare Redeemer, You straight are on your knees for pardon pardon, And I vniultly too, must grant it you: But for my brother, not a man would speake, Nor I vngratious speake vnto my selfe, For him poore foule: The proudest of you all Haue beene beholding to him in his life: Yet none of you would once pleade for his life: Oh God I feare thy Iustice will take hold On me, and you, and mine, and yours for this. (Exit. Come Hastings help me to my closet, oh poore Clarence, Glo. This is the fruit of rashnes: markt you not How that the guilty kindred of the Queene, Lookt pale when they did heare of Clarence death? Oh they did vrge it still vnto the King, God will revenge it. Thou art a widdow, yet thou art a mother, And hast the comfort of thy children left thee: But death hath inatcht my children from mine armes, And pluckt two crutches from my feeble limmes, Edward and Clarence, Oh what cause haue I Then, being but moity of my griefe, To ouergo thy plaints and drowne thy cries?

Boy. Good Aunt, you wept not for our fathers death,

How can we aide you with our kindreds teares. Gerl. Our fatherlesse distresse was left vnmoand,

Your widdowes dolours likewise be ynwept.

Qu. Giue me no help in lamentation, I am not barren to bring foorth laments: All springs reduce their currents to mine eies, That I being gouernd by the watry moane, May fend foorth plenteous teares to drowne the world: Oh for my husband, for my eire Lo: Edward.

Ambo Oh for our father, for our deare Lo: Clarence. Dut. Alas for both, both mine Edward and Clarence.

Qu. What stay had I but Edward, and he is gone?

Am. What stay had we but Clarence, and he is gone?

Dut. What flaies had I but they, and they are gone?

Was neuer Widdow, had so deare a loste.

Ambe. Was neuer Orphanes had a dearer losse. Du. Was neuer mother had a dearer losse: Alas, I am the mother of these mones, Their woesare parceld, mine are generall: She for Edward weepes, and so doe I: I for a Clarence weepe, so doth not she: These babes for Clarence weepe, and so doe I: I for an Edward weepe, so doe not they. Alas, you three on me threefold diffrest, Poure all your teares, I am your forrowes nurse, And I will pamper it with lamentations. Enter Glocest. Gl. Madame have comfort, al of vs have cause, with others. To waile the dimming of our thining starre: But none can cure their harmes by wailing them, Madame my mother, I doe crie you mercy, Idid not see your Grace, humbly on my knee I craue your blessing.

Dw. Godblessethee, and put meekenes in thy minde,

Loue, charity, obedience, and true duety.

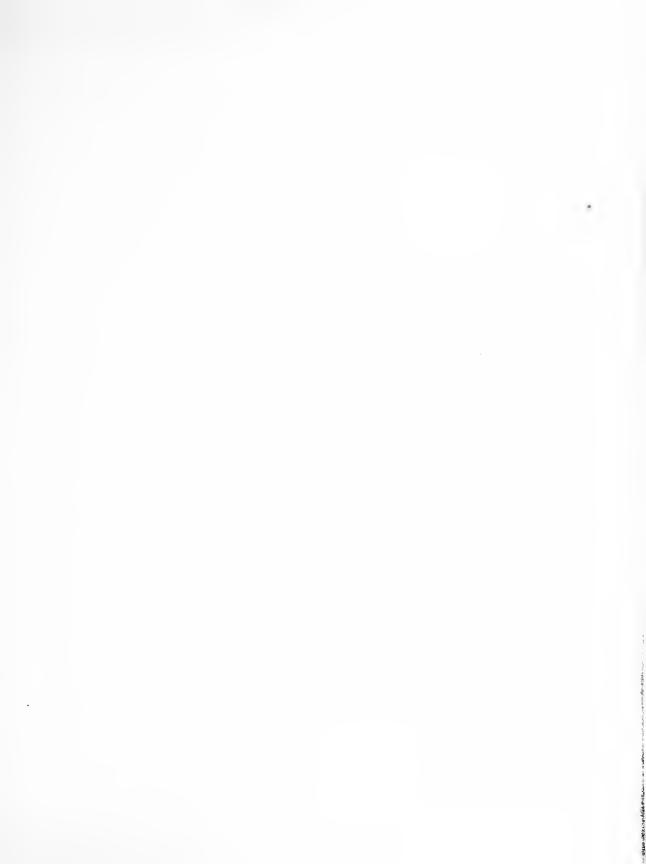

Glo. Amen, and make me die a good old man, Thats the buttend of a mothers blessing: I maruell why her Grace did leaue it out.

Buck, You cloudy Princes, and hart-sorrowing peeres
That beare this mutuall heavy lode of moane:
Now cheare each other, in each others love:
Though we have spent our harvest of this King,
We are to reape the harvest of his sonne:
The broken rancour of your high swolne hearts,
But lately splintered, knit, and loyed etogether,
Must gently be preserved, cherisht and kept,
Me seemeth good that with some little traine,
Forthwith from Ludlow the yong Prince be setcht
Hither to London, to be crowned our King.

Gio. Then boit so; and go we to determine, Who they shalbe that straight shall post to Ludlow: Madame, and you my mother will you go, To give your censures in this waighty busines,

Ans. With all our hearts. Execut man, Glo. Buck

Bucke

Buck. My Lord who eueriourneies to the Prince, For Gods sake let not vs two stay behinde: For by the way Ile sort occasion, As index to the story we late talkt of, To part the Queenes proud kindred from the King.

Glo. My other felfe, my counfels confiftory:
My Oracle, my Prophet, my deare Cofen:
Ilike a childe will go by thy direction:
Towards Ludlow then, for we will not stay behinde.

Enter two Cittizens.

1 Cit. Neighbour well met, whither away so fast?

2 Cit. I promise you, I scarcely know my selfe.

1 Heare you the newes abroad?
2 I, that the King is dead.

I Bad newes birlady, seldome comes the better,

I feare, I feare, twill prooue a troublous world. Ent. ano-3 Cit. Good morrow neighbours. ther Citt.

Doth this newes hold of good King Edwards death?

I It doth. 3 Then masters looke to see a troublous world

I No no, by Gods good grace his sonne shall raigne.

Woe to that land thats governd by a childe.
In him there is a hope of government.

That in his nonage counsell under him, And in his full and ripened yeres himselfe, No doubt shall then, and till then governe well,

I So stoode the state when Harry the sixt Was crownd at Paris, but at ix. moneths olde.

3 Stoode the state so? no good my friend not so, For then this land was famously enricht With pollitike grave counsell: then the King Had vertuous Vnckles to protect his Grace.

2 So hath this, both by the father and mother.

3 Better it were they all came by the father, Or by the father there were none at all: For emulation now, who shall be neerest: Will touch vs all too neare, if God preuent not, Oh full of danger is the Duke of Glocester, And the Queenes kindred hauty and proud,

And were they to be rulde, and not to rule, This fickly land might folace as before.

2 Come come, we feare the worlf, all shalbe well,

When cloudes appeare, wife men put on their clokes:
When great leaves fall, the winter is at hand:
When the funne fets, who doth not looke for night:
Vntimely stormes, makemen expect a darth:
All may be well: but if God fort it so,
Tis more then we deferue or I expect.

I Truely the foules of men are full of bread: Yee cannot almost reason with a man That lookes not heavily, and full of feare.

3 Before the times of change still is it so: By a durine instinct mens mindes mistrust Ensuing dangers, as by proofe we see. The waters swell before a boistrous storme: But leave it all to God: whither away?

2 We are sent for to the Iustice.

And so was I, lie beare you company. Exeunt.

Enter Cardinall, Dutches of Yorke, Quee. young Yorke.

Car. Last night I heare they lay at Northhampton.

At Stonistratford will they be to night, To morrow or next day, they will be here.

Dut. I long with all my heart to fee the Prince, I hope he is much growen fince last I saw him.

Q#. But I heareno, they say my sonne of Yorke Hath almost ouertane him in his growth.

Yor. I mother, but I would not have it so.

Dut. Why my young Colen it is good to growe.

Yor. Grandam, one night as we did fit at supper, My Vnckle Rivers talkt how I did grow More then my brother. I quoth my Nnckle Glocester, Small herbeshaue grace, great weedes grow apace, And since me thinkes I would not grow so fast:

Because sweete flowers are flow, and weedes make haste.

Dut. Good faith, good faith, the saying did not hold

In him that did object the same to thee:

He was the wretchedst thing when he was young,

So long a growing, and so leisurely,

That if this were a true rule, he should be gratious.

car. Why Madame, so no doubt he is.

Dut. I hope so too, but yet let mothers doubt.

Yor. Now by my troth if I had beene remembred,
I could have given my Vnckles grace a flout, min

That should have neerer toucht his growth then he did

Dut. How my prety Yorke? I pray theelet me heare it.

Yor. Mary they fay, my Vnckle grew so fast, That he could gnaw a crust at two houses olde: Twasfull two yeares ere I could get a tooth. Granam this would have heene a biting iest.

Dut. I pray thee prety Yorke who tolde thee fo.

Yor. Granam his nurse.

Dut. His nurse: why she was dead ere thou wertborne.

Yor. If twere not she, I cannot tell who tolde me.

Qu. A perilous boy go to, you are too shrewde. Car. Good Madame be not angry with the childe.

Qn. Pitchers have eares. Enter Dorset.

Car. Here comes your sonne, Lo: M. Dorset.

What newes Lo: Marques?

Dor. Such newes my Lo: as grieues me to vnfolde.

Qu. How fares the Prince?

Dor. Well Madaine, and in health.

Dut. What is thy newes then?

Dor. Lo: Rivers and Lo: Gray are fent to Poinfret, With them, Sir Thomas Vaughan, prisoners.

Dut. Who hath committed them?

Dor. The mighty Dukes, Glocester and Buckingham.

Car. For what offence.

Dor. The summe of all I can, I have disclosed: Why, or for what, these nobles were committed, Isall vnknowen to me my gratious Lady.

On. Ay me I see the downfall of our house, The tyger now hath ceazed the gentle hinde: Insulting tyranny beginnes to let, V pon the innocent and lawlesse throane: Welcome destruction, death and massacre,

I see as in a mappe the ende of all.

Du. Accursed and vnquiet wrangling daies, How many of you have mine eies beheld?
My husband lost his life to get the crowne, And often vp and downe my sonnes were tost: For me to ioy and weepe their gaine and losse, And being seated and domestike broiles, Cleane ouerblowne themselves, the conquerours Make warre vpon themselves, bloud against bloud, Selfe against selfe, Opreposterous And frantike outrage, ende thy damned spleene, Or let me die to looke on death no more.

Qu. Come come my boy, we will to fanctuary:

Dut. He go along with you. Qu. You have no cause.

Car. My gratious Lady go,

And thither beare your treasure and your goods,
For my part, lle resigne vnto your Grace
The seale I keepe, and so betide to me,
As well I tender you and all of yours:

Come lie conduct you to the sanctuary. Exeunt.

The Trumpets found. Enter young Prince, the Dukes of Glocester, and Bucking ham, Cardinall, Gro. (ber.

Buc. Welcome sweete Prince to London to your cham-Glo. Welcome deare Cosen my thoughts soueraigne,

The weary way hath made you melancholy.

Prin. No Vnckle, but our crosses on the way
Haue made it tedious, wearisome, and heauy:
I want more Vnckleshere to welcome me.

Glo. Sweete Prince, the vntainted vertue of your yeres, Hath not yet dived into the worlds deceit:
Nor more can you distinguish of a man,
Then of his outward shew, which God he knowes,
Seldome or never impeth with the heart:
Those Vnckles which you want, were dangerous,
Your Grace attended to their sugred words,
But lookt not on the poison of their hearts:
God keepe you from them, and from such false friends.

Prin.

Pri. God keepe me from falle friends, but they wer none, Glo. My Lo, the Maior of London comes to greete you. Enter Lord Major.

Lo:M. God bleffe your grace with health and happy daies. Prin. Ithanke you good my Lo: and thanke you all: I thought my mother, and my brother Yorke, Would long ere this have met vs on the way: Fie, what a flug is Hastings that he comes not To tell vs whether they will come, or no, (Enter L.Haft. Buck. And in good time, here comes the sweating Lo: Pri. Welcome my Lo: what will our mother come? Hast. On what occasion, God he knowes, not I: The Queene your mother and your brother Yorke Haue taken fanctuary: The tender Prince Would faine have come with me, to meet e your Grace, But by his mother was persorce withheld.

Buc. Fie, what an indirect and pecuish course Is this of hers? Lo: Cardinall will your grace Perswade the Queene to send the Duke of Yorke Vnto his Princely brother presently? If the deny, Lo: Haltingsgo with him,

And from her icalous armes plucke him perforce. Car. My Lo: of Buckingham, if my weake oratory Can from his mother winne the Duke of Yorke, Anone expect him here: but if the be obdurate To milde entreaties, God in heaven forbid We should infringe the holy priviledge

Of bleffed fanctuary, not for all this land, Would I be guilty of so deepe a sinne.

Buck. You are too sencelesse obstinate my Lo: Too ceremonious and traditionall: Weigh it but with the groffenes of this age. You breake not fanctuary in feazing him: The benefit thereof is alwaies granted To those whose dealings have deserved the place, And thole who have the wit to claime the place. This Prince hath neither claimed it, nor deserved it, And therefore in mine opinion, cannot have it.

Then

Then taking him from thence that is not there, You breake no priviledge nor charter there: Oft have I heard of fanctuary men, But sanctuary children never till now.

Car. My Lo: you shall ouerrule my minde for once: Come on Lo: Hastings will you go with me?

Hast. Igo my Lord.

Prin. Good Lords make all the speedy hast you may: Say Vnckle Glocester, if our brother come,

Where shall we solve till our coronarion?

Glo. Where it seemes best vnto your royall selfe:
If I may councell you, some day or two,
Your highnes shall repose you at the tower:
Then where you please, and shall be thought most fit

For your best health and recreation.

Prin. I doe not like the sower of any place: Did Iulius Cæsar build that place my Lord? Buc. He did, my gratious Lo: begin that place.

Which since succeeding ages have reedified.

Prin. Is it vpon record, or els reported Successively from age to age he built it?

Buc. V pon record my gratious Lo:
Pri. But say my Lo: it were not registred,
Me thinkes the truth should live from age to age,
Active partially and profession.

As twere retailde to all politerity, Euen to the general all-ending day.

Glo. So wife, so young, they say doe never livelong.

Pri. What say you Vnckle?

Glo. Is a without characters fame lines long:

I hus like the formall vice iniquity, I morallize two meanings in one word.

Pri. That Iulius Cesar was a farnous man, With what his valour did enrich his wit, His wit set downe to make his valure liue: Death makes no conquest of this conquerour, For now he liues in fame though not in life: He tell you what my Cosen Buckingham.

Buc. What my gratious Lord?

Prin. And if I liue vntill I be a man, Ile winne our auncient right in France againe, Or die a fouldier as I liude a King.

Glo. Short summers lightly have a forward spring.

Enter young Yorke, Hastings, Cardinall.

Buc. Now in good time here comes the Duke of Yorke.

Pri. Rich. of Yorke how fares our louing brother?

Yer. Well my dread Lo: so must I call you now.

Pri. Ibrother to our griefe as it is yours: Too late he died that might have kept that title, Which by his death hath lost much maiesty.

Glo. How fares our Cosen noble Lo: of Yorke?

Yor. I thanke you gentle Vnckle. Omy Lo: You faid that idle weedes are fast in growth: The Prince my brother hath outgrowen me farre.

Glo. He hath my Lo:

Yor. And therfore is he idle?

Glo. Oh my faire Colen, I must not say so.

Tor. Then he is more beholding to you then I.

Glo. He may command me as my soueraigue, But you haue power in me as in a kinseman.

Tor. I pray you Vnckle give me this dagger.
66. My dagger little Cosen, with all my heart.

Tri. A begger brother?

Yor. Of my kind Vnckle that I know will give, And being but a toy, which is no griefe to give.

Glo. A greater gift then that, Ile give my Cosen.

Yor. A greater gift, O that the fword to it. Glo. Igentle Cosen, were it light enough.

Yor. Othen I see you will part but with light gifts,

In weightier things youle say a begger nay.

Glo. It is too heavy for your Grace to weare.

Yor. I weigh it lightly were it heavier.

Glo. What would you have my weapon little Lord?

Yor. I would, that I might thanke you as you call me.

Glo. How? Yor. Little.

Pri. My Lo: of Yorke will still be crosse in talke: Vnckle your grace knowes how to be are with him.

F 2

Yor. You meane to beare me, not to beare with me: Vnckle, my brother mockes both you and me, Because that I am little like an Ape,

He thinkes that you should beare me on your shoulders.

Buck. With what a sharpe prouded withe reasons, To mittigate the scorne he gives his Vnckle: He pretely and aptly taunts himselfe, So cunting and so young is wonderfull.

Olo. My Lo: wilt please you passe along, My selfe and my good Coosen Buckingham, Will to your mother, to entreate of her, To meete you at the tower, and welcome you.

Yor. What will you go vnto the tower my Lo? Prin. My Lo: protector needes will have it so. Yor. I shall not sleepe in quiet at the tower.

Glo. Why, what should you feare?

Yer. Mary my Vnckle Clarence angry ghost: My Granam tolde me he was murdred there.

Pri. Ifeare no Vnckles dead.
Clo. Nor none that live, I hope.

Pri And if they live. I hope I neede not feare: But come my Lo: with a heavy heart Thinking on them, go I vnto the tower.

Exeunt Prin, Yor. Hast. Dors manet Rich. Buck.
Buc. Thinke you my Lo: this little prating Yorke,
Was not incensed by his subtile mother.

To taunt and scorne you thus opprobriously?

Glo. No doubt, no doubt, Oh tis a perillous boy, Bold, quicke, ingenious, forward, capable, He is all the mothers, from the top to toe.

Buc. Well, let them rest: Come hither Catesby, Thou art sworne as deepely to essect what we intend, As closely to conceale what we impart. Thou knowest out reasons vrgde vpon the way: What thinkest thou? is it not an easie matter To make William Lo: Hastings of our minde, For the instalement of this noble Duke, In the seate royall of this famous le?

Catef.

Cates. He for his fathers sake so loues the Prince, That he will not be wonne to ought against him. Buck. What thinkest thou then of Stanley what will he? Cat. He will doe all in all as Hastings doth. Buck. Well then no more but this: Go gentle Catesby, and as it were a farre off. Sound thou Lo: Hastings, how he stands affected Vnto our purpose, if he be willing, Encourage him, and shew him all our reasons: If he be leaden, icie, cold, vnwilling,, Be thou so too: and so breake off your talke, And give vs notice of his inclination: For we to morrow hold devided counsels, Wherein thy felfe shalt highly be emploied. Glo. Commend me to Lo: William, tell him Catesby, His auncient knot of dangerous aduersaries To morrow are let bloud at Pomfret Castle, And bid my friend for ioy of this good newes, Giue Miltrelle Shore, one gentle kille the more. Buck. Good Catesby effect this busines soundly. Cat. My good Lo: both, with all the heede I may. Glo. Shall we heare from you Catesby ere we fleepe? Cat. You shall my Lord. Glo. At Crosby place there shall you finde vs both. Buc. Now my Lo: what shall we doe, if we perceive William Lo: Haltings will not yeeld to our complots? Glo. Chop of his head man, somewhat we will does And looke when I am King, claime thou of me The Earledome of Hereford and the moueables, Whereof the King my brother flood pollelt. Buc. Ileclaime that promise at your Graces hands. Glo. And looke to haue it yeelded with all willingnes: Come let vs suppe betimes, that afterwards We may digelt our complots in some forme. Exeunt. Enter a Messenger to Lo: Hastings. Mes. What ho my Lord. Hast. Who knockes at the dore. Meß. A messenger from the Lo: Stanley. Enter L, Hast-F 3 Halt.

Hast. Whatsa clocke?

Meff. Vpon the stroke of foure.

Hast. Cannot thy Master sleepe these tedious nights?

Meff. So it should seeme by that I have to say: First he commends him to your noble Lordship.

Hast. And then, Mest. And then he sends you word. He dreamt to night the beare had raste his helme:
Besides, he saies there are two councels held,
And that may be determined at the one,
Which may make you and him to rewe at 'the other,
Therefore he sends to know your Lordships pleasure:
It presently you will take horse with him,

And with all speeds polt into the North, To shun the danger that his souls divines.

Hast. Go fellow go, returne vnto thy Lord, Bid him not scare the seperated counsels:
His honour and my selfe are at the one,
And at the other, is my seruant Catesby:
Where nothing can proceede that toucheth vs,
Whereos I shall not have intelligence.
Tell him his seares are shallow, wanting instance.
And for his dreames, I wonder he is so fond,
To trust the mockety of vnquiet slumbers,
To slie the boare, before the boare pursues vs.
Were to incense the boare to follow vs,
And make pursuite where he did meane no chase:
Go hid thy Master rise and come to me.

Go bid thy Malter rile and come to me, And we will both together to the tower. Where he shall see the boare will vse vs kindely.

Mess. My gratious Lo: Ile tell him what you say. Enter Cat. Many good morrowes to my noble Lo: (Cates. Hast. Good morrow Catesby, you are early firring.

Halt. Good morrow Catesby, you are early firring, What newes what newes, in this our tottering state?

Cat. It is a reeling world indeede my Lo: And I beleeue it will neuer stand vpright, Till Richard weare the garland of the Realme.

Hast. Howe? we are the garland? doest thou meane the Cat. Imy good Lord. (crowne?

Hast.

Hast. Ile haue this crowne of mine, cut from my sloud-Ere I will see the crowne so soule misplaste: (ders But canst thou guesse that he doth aime at it.

Cat. Vpon my life my Lo: and hopes to find you forward Vpon his party for the gaine thereof, And thereupon he fends you this good newes,

That this same very day, your enemies,

The kindred of the Queene must die at Pomfret.

Hast: Indeede I am no mourner for that newes, Because they have beene still mine enemies:
But that I legiue my voice on Richards side,
To barre my Masters heires in true discent,
God knowes I will not doeit to the death.

Cat. God keepe your Lordship in that gratious minde. Hast. But I stall laugh at this a twelvementh hences

That they who brought me in my Mastershate,

I liue to looke vpon their tragedy:
I tell thee Catesby. Cat. What my Lord?

Hast. Ere a fortnight make me elder, He tend some packing, that yet thinke not on it.

Cat. Tisa vile thing to die my gratious Lord, When men are unprepard and looke not for it.

Haff. O Monstrous monstrous, and so fals it out With Rivers, Vaughan, Gray, and so twill doe With some men els, who thinke themselves as safe As thou, and I, who as thou knowest are deare To Princely Richard, and to Buckingstam.

Cat. The Princes both make high account of you, For they account his head vpon the bridge.

Hast. Iknow they doe, and I have well deserved it.

Enter Lord Stanley.

What my Lo: where is your boare-speare man? Feare you the boare and go so ynprovided?

Stan. My Lo: good morrow: good morrow Catesby:

You may jest on: but by the holy toode. I doe not like these severall councels 1.

Hast. My Lo: I hould my life as deare as you doe yours, And neuer in my life I doe protest.

Was

Was it more pretious to me then it is now: Thinke you, but that I know our state secure, (don, I would be so triumphant as I am? Stan. The Lords at Pomfret when they rode from Lon-Were iocund, and suppose their states was sure, And they indeed had no cause to mistrust: But yet you see how soone the day ouercast, This sodaine scab of rancour I missoubt, Pray God, I say, I proue a needelesse coward: But come my Lo: shall we to the tower? Halt. Igo: but Itay, heare you not the newes, This day those men you talkt of, are beheaded. Sta. They for their truth might better weare their heads, Then fome that have accuse them weare their hats: But come my Lo: let vs away. Enter Hastin. Hast. Go you before, Ile follow presently. (a Pursuant. Hast. Well met Hastings, how goes the world with thee? Pur. The better that it please your Lo: to aske. Halt. I tell thee fellow tis better with me now. Then when I met thee last where now yve meete: Then was I going prisoner to the tower, By the fuggestion of the Queenes allies: But now I tell thee (keepe it to thy felfe.) This day those enemies are put to death, And I in better state then cuer I was. Pur. God hold it to your honors good content. Halt. Gramercy Haltings hold spend thou that, He gives Pur. God faue your Lordship. (him his purfe. Haft. What Sir Iohn, you are wel met, (Enter a prieft. I am beholding to you for your last daies exercise: Come the next sabaoth and I will content you. He whif-Enter Bucking ham. (pers in his eare. Buc. How now Lo: Chamberlaine, what talking with a Your friends at Pomfret they doe need the priest (priest, Your honour hath no shriving worke in hand. Hast. Good faith and when I met this holy man, Those men you talke of came into my minde: What, go you to the tower my Lord?

Buck.

Buck. I doe, but long I shall not stay,
I shall returne before your Lordship thence.

Haft. Tis like enough, for I stay dinner there.

Buck. And supper too, although thou knowest it not:

Come shall we go along? Exeunt.

Enter Sir Rickard Ratliffe, with the Lo: Rivers, Gray, and Vaughan, prisoners.

Ratl. Come bring foorth the prisoners.

Ryu. Sir Richard Ratliffe let me tell thee this:

To day shalt thou behold a subject die, For truth, for duty, and for loyalty.

Gray. God keepe the Prince from all the packe of you:

A knot you are of damned bloudfuckers.

Ryu. O Pomfret Pomfret. Oh thou bloudy prison,

Fatall and ominous to noble peeres. Within the guilty closure of thy wals

Richard the second here was hackt to death:

And for more slaunder to thy dismall soule,

We give thee vp our guiltlesse blouds to drinke.

Gray. Now Margarets curse is falne voon our heads:

For standing by, when Richard stabd her sonne.

Riu. Then curst the Hastings, then curst she Bucking-

Then curst she Richard. Oh remember God, To heare her praiers for them as now for vs.

And for my fifter, and her princely fonne:

Be fatisfied deare God with our true blouds, Which as thou knowest vniustly must be spilt.

Rat. Come come dispatch, the limit of your lines is out.

Ryu. Come Gray, come Vaughan, let vs all imbrace And take our leauevntill we meete in heauen. Exeun

Enter the Lords to Councell.

Hast. My Lords at once the cause why we are met,

Is to determine of the coronation:

In Gods name say, when is this toyall day?

Buc. Are all things fitting for that royall time?

Dar. It is, and wants but nomination.

Ryu. To morrow then, I guesse a happy time.

Buc. Who knowes the Lo: protectors mind herein?

Who

I he Tragedy

Who is most inwa d with the noble Duke.

Bi. Why you my Lo: me thinks you should somest know

Euc. Who I my Lo? we know each others faces: (his mind

But for our harts, he knowes no more of mine,

Then I of yours: nor Ino more of his, then you of mine:

Lo: Hastings you and he are neerein love.

Hast. I thanke his Grace. I know he loues me well:
But for his purpose in the ceronation:
I have not sounded him nor he deliverd
His Graces pleasure any way therein:
But you my noble Lo: may name the time,
And in the Dukes behalfe, Ile give my voice,

Which I prefilme he will take in Gentle part.

Bish. Now in good time here comes the Duke himselfe.

Glo. My noble L. and Cosens all, good morrow, (Ent. Glo.

I have beene long a sleeper, but I hope

My absence doth neglect no great designes,

Which by my presence might have been concluded:

Buc. Had not you come vpon your kew my Lo:

Buc. Had not you come vpon your kew my Lo: William L: Hallings had now pronounft your part: I meane your voice for crowning of the King.

Glo. Than my Lo: Hastings no man might be bolder, His Lordship knowes me well, and loues me well.

Hast. Ithanke your Grace.

Glo. My Lo: of Elie, Bib. My Lo: Glo. When I was last in Holborne: I saw good strawberries in your garden there, I doe beseech you send for some of them.

Bish. Igo my Lord.

Glo. Cosen Buckingham, a word with you: Catesby hath sounded Hastings in our busines, And findes the testy Gentleman so hoat, As he will loose his head eare give consent, His Masters sonneas worshipful he termes it, Shalloose the roialty of Englands throane.

Buc. Withdraw you hence my Lo: He follow you. Ex Gl. Dar. We have not yet set downe this day of triumph,

To morrow in mine opinion is too fodaine:

For

For I my felfe am not so well promided, Enter B. Asels I would be were the day prolonged. of Ely. By, Where is my L. protector, I have fent for these strawbe-Ha. His Grace lookes cheerfully and (mooth to day, Theres some conceit or other likes him well, When he doth bid good morrow with fuch a spirit. I thinke there is neuera man in christendome. That can lesser hide his love or hate then he: For by his face straight shall you know his heart. Dar. What of his heart perceive you in his face, By any likelihood he shewed to day? Hast. Mary, that with no man here he is offended. For if he were, he would have shewen it in his lookes. Dar. I pray God he be not, I say. Enter Gloce/ter. Glo. I pray you all, what docthey deferue, That doe conspire my death with diuclish plots, Of damned witchcraft, and that have prevaild. V pon my body with their helliss charmes? Hast. The tender love I beare your grace my Lord, Makes me most forward in this noble presence, To doome the offenders what locuer they be: I say my Lo: they have deserved death. Glo. Then be your elesthe withelle of this ill, See how I am bewitcht, behold mine arme Is like a blatted fapling withered vp. This is that Edwards wife, that monstrous witch, Conforted with that harlot strumpet Shore. That by their witchcraft, thus have marked me. Hast. If they have done this thing my gratious Lo: Glo. If thou protector of this dainned strumpet, Telst thou me of iffest hou art a traitor. Off with his head. Now by Saint Paule, I will not dive to day I sweare, ${f V}$ ntill ${f I}$ fee the fame, forme fee it done, The rest that love me, come and follow me. Excunt.manet Ha. Wo wo for England, not a white for me: Cat. with Ha. For I too fond might have prevented this: Stanley did dreame the boare did race his helme, But

But I distaind it, and did scorne to flie,
Three times to day, my footecloth horse did stumble,
And startled when he lookt vpon the tower.
As loa: h to beare me to the slaughterhouse.
Oh, now I want the Priest that spake to me,
I now repent I tolde the Pursuant.
As twere triumphing at mine enemies:
How they at Pomfret bloudily were butcherd,
And I my selfe secure in grace and fauour:
Oh Margaret Margaret: now thy heavy curse,
Is lighted on poore Hassings wretched head.
Cat. Diseatch my Lo: the Duke would be at dinner:

Cat. Dispatch my Lo: the Duke would be at dinner: Make a short shrift, he longs to see your head.

Hast. O momer tary state of worldly men,
Which we more hunt for, then the grace of heauen:
Who buildes his hopes in aire of your faire lookes,
Liues like a drunken sayler on a mast,
Ready with enery nod to tumble downe
Into the fatall bowels of the deepe.
Come leade me to the blocke, beare him my head,
They smile at me that shortly shalbe dead.

Exeunt.

Enter Duke of Glocester and Buckingham in armour.

Glo. Come Cosen, canst thou quake and change thy co-Murther thy breath in middle of a word, (lour? And then beginne againe, and stop againe, Asis thou wert distraught and mad with terror.

Buc. Tut fearenot me.

I can counterfait the deepe Tragedian:
Speake, and looke backe, and prie on every side:
Intending deepe suspition, gastly lookes
Are at my service like inforced smiles,
And both are ready in their offices

To grace my stratagenis. Enter Maior.

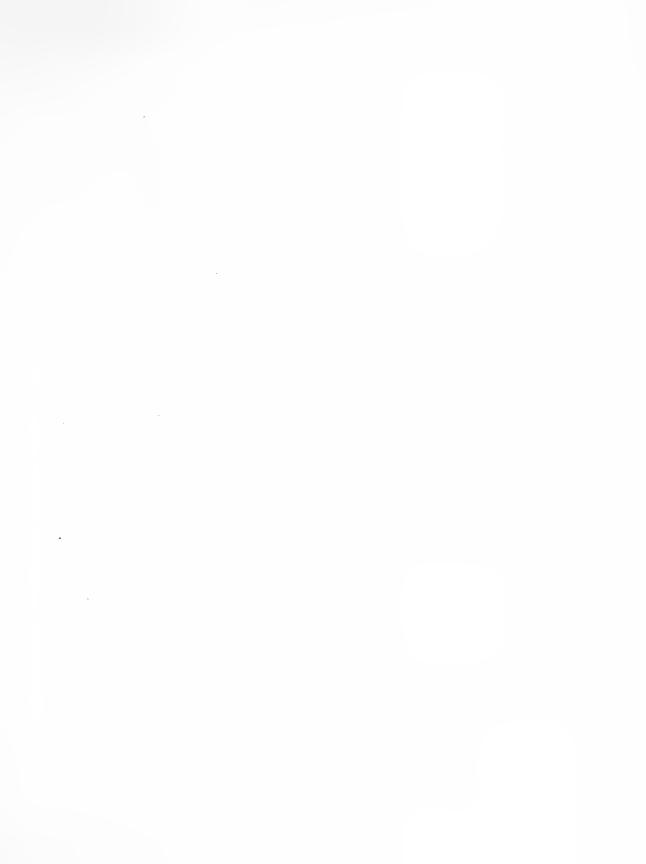

Glo. Here comes the Maior.

Buc. Let me alone to entertaine him. Lo: Maior,

Glo. Looke to the drawbridge there.

Buc. The reason we have sent for you.

Glo. Catesby overlooke the wals.

Buck Harke, I heare a drumme.

Glo. Looke backe, defend thee, here are enemies.

Buc. God and our innocence defend vs. Enter Catesby Glo. O, O, be quiet, it is Catesby. with Halt head.

Cat. Here is the head of that ignoble traitor,

The daungerous and vnfuspected Hastings.

Glo. So deare I lou'd the man, that I must weepe: I tooke him for the plainest harmelesse man, That breathed upon this earth a christian,

Looke ye my Lo: Maior.

Made him my booke, wherein my foule recorded, The history of all her fecret thoughts: So smoothe he daubd his vice with shew of vertue, That his apparant open guilt omitted: I meane his conversation with Shores wife. He laid from all attainder of suspect.

Buck. Well well, he was the couertst sheltred traitor That ever liu'd would you have imagined, Or almost believe, wert not by great preservation We live to tell it you? The subtile traitor Had this day plotted in the councell house, To murder me, and my good Lord of Glocester.

Major. What, had he fo?

Glo. What thinke you we are Turkes or Insidels, Orthat we would against the forme of lawe, Proceede thus rashly to the villaines death, But that the extreame perill of the case, The peace of England, and our persons safety Inforst vs to this execution.

Ma. Now faire befall you, he deferued his death, And you my good Lords both, have well proceeded To warne false traitours from the like attempts: I never lookt for better at his hands, After he once fell in with Mistresse Shore.

Dut. Yet had not we determined he should die, Vntill your Lordship came to see his death, Which now the longing halte of these our friends, Somewhat against our meaning have prevented,

Ben

Because, my Lord, we would have had you heard The traitor speake, and timerously confesse The maner, and the purpose of his treason, That you might well have fignified the fame Vinto the Citizens, who happily may Misconster vs in him, and wayle his death. Ma. But my good Lord, your graces word shall ferue As well as I had seene or heard him speake, And doubt you not, right noble Princes both, But He acquaint your dutious citizens, With all your fust proceedings in this cause. Glo. And to that end we witht your Lordship here To anoyde the carping centures of the world. Bue. But fince you come too late of our intents, Yet witheste what we did intend, and so my Lord adue. Glo. After, after, coolin Buckingham, Exit Maior. The Maior towards Guildhall hies him in all post, There at your meetst advantage of the time, Inferre the bastardy of Edwards children: Tell them how Edward put to death a Cittizen, Onely for faying he would make his fonne Heire to the Crowne, meaning (indeede) his house, Which by the figne thereof was termed fo. Moreouer, vrge hishatefull luxurie, And bestiall appetite in change of lust, Which stretched to theyr servants, daughters, wives, Euen where his lustfull eye, or sauage heart Without controll listed to make his prey: Nay for a neede thus farre, come neere my person, Tell them, when that my mother went with childe Of that vnfatiate Edward; noble Yorke My princely father then had warres in Fraunce, And by iull computation of the tyme Found, that the issue was not his begot, Which well appeared in his lineaments, Being nothing like the noble Duke my father: But touch this sparingly as it were farre off, Because you know, my Lord, my mother liues.

Buck, Feare not, my Lord, Ile play the Orator, As if the golden fee for which I pleade Were for my selfe.

Glo. It you thrive well, bring them to Baynards callle, Where you shall finde me well accompanyed, Wyth reverend fathers and well learned Bishops.

Buc. About three or foure a clocke look to heare

What news Guildhall affordeth, and so my Lord farewell.

Glo. Now will I in to take some privy order,
To draw the brats of Clarence out of sight,
And to give notice, that no maner of person

At any tyme have recourse with the Princes.

This is the indictment of the good Lord Hastings,
Which in a set hand fairely is engross.
That it may be this day read ouer in Paules:
And marke how well the sequele hangs together,
Eleuen houres I spent to wryte it ouer,
For yesternight by Catesby was it brought me,
The president was full aslong a doyng,
And yet within these fine houres sined Lord Hastings,
Vntaynted, vnexamined, free, at liberty:
Heeres a good world, the while. Why whoes so grosse
That sees not this palpable denice?
Yet whoes so blinde but sayes he sees it not?
Bad is the world, and all will come to naught,
When such had dealing must be some to market.

When fuch bad dealing must be sene in thought. Ex Enter Glocesser at one doore, Bucking ham at another. Glo: How now my Lord, what say the Cittizens? Buc. Now by the holy mother of our Lord.

The Citizens are minine, and speake not a word.

Glo. Toucht you the bastardy of Edwards children?

Buck I did, wyth the insatiate greedinesse of his desires,

His tyranny for trifles, his owne bastardy, As beyng got, your father then in Fraunce: Withall I did inferre your lineaments, Beyng the right Idea of your father, Both in your forme and noblenesse of minde, Exit.

Laid open all your victories in Scotland: Your discipline in warre, wisedome in peace: Your bounty, vertue, faire humility: Indeede left nothing fitting for the purpole Vintoucht, or fleightly handled in discourle: And when mine oratory grew to an ende. I bid them that did loue their countries good, Crie, God faue Richard, Englands royall King. Glo. A and did they lo? Buc. No so God helpe me, But like dumbe statues or breathing stones, Gazde each on other and lookt deadly pale: Which when I saw, I reprehended them, And aske the Major, what meant this wilfull filence? His answere was, the people were not wont To be spoke to, but by the Recorder. Then he was vrgde to tell my tale againe: Thus, faithfthe Duke, thus hath the Duke inferd: But nothing spake in warrant from himselfe: When he had done, some followers of mine owne At the lower end of the Hall, hurld up their caps, And some ten voices cried, God saue King Richard. Thankes louing Cittizens and friends quoth I, This general applause and louing shoute, Argues your wiledomes and your love to Richard: And so brake off and came away, Glo. What tonglesse blockes were they, would they not Buc. No by my troth my Lo: ([peake? Glo. Will not the Major then, and his brethren come. Glo. The Major is here at hand, and intend some feares Be not spoken withall, but with mighty suite: And looke you get a praier booke in your hand, And fland betwixt two churchmen good my Lo: For on that ground Ile build a holy descant: Be not easily wonne to our request: Play the maides part, fay no, but take it. Glo. Feare not me, if thou canst pleade aswell for them, As I can fay may to thee, for my felfe? No

No doubt weele bring it to a happie iffue.

Buck You shal see what I can do, get you up to the leads. Exit.

Now my L. Maior, I dance attendance heare,

I thinks the Duke will not be stocke with all.

Enter Catachy.

I thinke the Duke will not be spoke withall, Enter Catesby. Here coms his servant: how now Catesby what saies he.

Catef. My Lord, he doth intreat your grace To vifit him to morrow or next daie, He is within with two right reverend fathers, Divinely bent to meditation, And in no worldjy fuite would he be mou'd,

To draw him from his holy exercise.

Buck. Returne good Catesby to thy Lord againe,
Tell him my felfe, the Maior and Cittizens,
In deepe designer and matters of great moment.

In deepe designes and matters of great moment, No lesse importing then our generall good,

Are come to have forme conference with his grace.

Catef. Ile tell him what you fay my Lord.

Exit.

Buck. A ha my Lord this prince is not an Edward:

He is not lulling on a lewd day bed,
But on his knees at meditation:
Not dalying with a brace of Curtizans,
But meditating with two deepe Diuines

Not fleeping to ingroffe his idle body, But praying to inrich his watchfull foule.

Happy were England, would this gracious prince

Take on himselfe the souerainty thereon, But sure I seare we shall never winne him to it.

Maior. Marry God forbid his grace should say vs nay,

Buck. I searche wil, how now Catesby,

Enter Gates.

What faics your Lord?

Catef. My Lo.he wonders to what end, you have affembled Such troupes of Cittizens to speake with him, His grace not being warnd thereof before,

My Lord, he feares you meane no good to him,

Buok. Sorrie I am my noble Cofen should

Suspect me that I meane no good to him. By headen I come in persect loue to him, And so once more returns and tell his grace:

Exit Catesby.
When

When hollie and deuout religious men, Are at their beads, tis hard to draw them thence, So fweet is zealous contemplation.

Enter Rich with two bishops a loste.

Maior. See where he stands between two elergic men.

Buck. Two props of vertue for a christian Prince,

To staie him from the fall of vanitie,

Famous Plantaganet, most gracious prince,

Lend fauorable eares to our request,

And pardon vertue interruption

Of thy deuotion and right Christian zeale.

Glo. My Lord, there needs no such apologie,
I rather do beseech you pardon me,
Who earnest in the service of my God,
Neglect the visitation of my friends,
But leaving this, what is your graces pleasure?

Buck, Even that I hope which pleaseth God above,

And all good men of this vngouerned ile.

Glo. I do suspect I have done some offence.

That seemes disgracious in the Circles eies,

And that you come to reprehend my ignorance.

Buck. You have my Lord, would it please your grace

At our entrearies to amend that fault. Glo. Else wherefore breath I in a Christian land? Buck. Then know it is your fault that you refigue The supreame seat, the throne maiesticall, The sceptred office of your auncestors, The lineall glorie of your roiall house, To the corruption of a blemishst stocke: Whilft in the mildnesse of your sleepie thoughts, Which here we waken to our countries good, This noble lle doth want her proper limbes, Her face defac't with scars of infamie, And almost shouldred in the swallowing gulph; Of blind forgetfulnesse and darke oblinion, Which to recure we hartily folicit, Your gratious selfe to take on you the soueraingtie thereof, Not as Protector fleward substitute,

Or lowlie factor for anothers gaine:
But as successfuelie from bloud to bloud,
Your right of birth, your Emperie, your owne:
For this conforted with the Citizens
Your verie worshipfull and louing srinds,
And by their vehement instigation,
In this just faite come I to move your grace.

Glo. I know not whether to depart in filence, Or bitterlie to speake in your reproofe, Belt fitteth my degree or your condition: Your love deserves my thanks, but my desert Vnmeritable shunes your high request, First if all obstacles were cut awaie, And that my path were even to the crown, As my ripe revenew and dew by birth, Yet to much is my pouerty of spirit, So mightie and to many my defects, As I had rather hide me from my greatnes, Beeing a Barketo brooke no mightie sea, Then in my greatnes couet to be hid, And in the vapour of my glorie smotherd: But God be thanked there's no need of me, And much I need to helpe you if need were, The roiall tree hath left vs roiall fruit, Which mellowed by the stealing houres of time, Will well become the feat of maiestie, And make no doubt vs happie by his raigne, On him I laie what you would laie on me: The right and fortune of his happie stars, Which God defend that I should wring from him.

Buck, My lord, this argues conscience in your grace, But the respects thereof are nice and triviall, All circumstances well considered:
You saie that Edward is your brothers sonne,
So saie we to, but not by Edwards wise,
For first he was contract to lady Lucy,
Your mother lives a witnesse to that yowe,
And afterward by substitute betrothed

To Bene fister to the king of Fraunce, These both put by a poore petitioner A care erazo mother of a many children, A beauty-waining and diffrested widow, Euen in the afternoone of her belt daies Made prife and purchase of his lustfull eye, Seduc tthe pitch and height of al his thoughts, To base declension and loathd bigamie, By her in his ynlawfull bed he got. This Edward whom our maners terme the prince, More bitterlie could I expostulate, Saue that for reverence to fome alive I give a sparing limit to my tongue: Then good my Lord, take to your royall felfe, This proffered benefit of dignitie: If not to bleffevs and the land withall, Yet to draw out your royall stocke, From the corruption of abusing time, Vnto a lineall true deriued course.

Maior. Do good my Lord your Cittizens entreat you. Cues. O make them joiful grant their lawful suite. Glo. Alas, why would you heape these cares on me, I am viiht for state and dignitie,

I do beseech you take it not amisse, I cannot nor I will not yeeld to you.

Buck. If you refuse it as in love and zeale, Loath to depose the child your brothers sonne, As well we know your tendemes of heart, And gentle kind effeminate remorfe, Which wee haue noted in you to your kin, And egallie indeed to all estates, Yet whether you accept our fuire or no, Your brothers sonne shall neuer raigne our king, But we will plant lome other in the throane, To the difgrace and downfall of your house: And in this resolution here we leave you. Come Citizens, zounds ile intreat no more.

Gle. Odonotiwe are my Lord of Buckingham.

Catef. Call them againe, my lord, and accept their fute.

Ano. Doe, good my lord, least all the land do rew it.

Gle. Would you inforce me to a world of care:
Well, call them againe, I am not made of stones,
But penetrable to your kind intreates,
Albeit against my conscience and my soule.
Coosin of Buckingham, and you sage grave men,
Since you will buckle fortune on my backe,
To beare her burthen whether I will or no,
I must have patience to indure the lode,
But if blacke scandale or soule-fact reproch
Attend the sequell of your imposition,
Your meere inforcement shall acquirtance mee
From all the impure blots and staines thereof,
For God he knowes, and you may partly see,

How farre I am from the defire thereof.

Mayor. God bleffe your grace, we see it, and will say it.

Glo. In faying so, you shall but say the truth.

Buck, Then I salute you with this kingly title:
Long live Richard, Englands royall king.

Mayor. Amen.

Buck To morrow will it please you to be crown'd. Glo. Euen when you will, since you will haue it so. Buck. To morrow then we will attend your grace. Glo. Come, let ys to our holy taske againe:

Farewel good cooline, farwel gentle friends. Exeunt.

Enter Ques. mother, Duchesse of Torke, Marques Dorset, at one doore, Duchesse of Glocest. at another doore.

Duch. Who meets vsheere, my neece Plantagenet?

Qu. Silter well met, whether awaie fo fast?

Duch. No farther then the Tower, and as I gheffe Vpon the like deuotion as your felues,

To gratulate the tender Princes there.

Qu. Kind fifter thanks, weele enteral togither, Enter And in good time here the Lieutenant comes. Lieutenant. M. Lieutenant, pray you by your leaue, How fares the Prince?

Lieu. Wel Madam, and inhealth, but by your leave,

H 3

The Tragedie

I may not suffer you to visite him. The King hath straightlie charged the contrarie.

Qu. The King? whie, whose that?

Lieu. I crie you mercie, I meane the Lord protector. Un. The Lord protect him from that Kinglie title: Hath he set boundes betwixt their love and me: I am their mother, who should keepe me from them? Duyer. I am their Pathers, Mother, I will see them.

Duch. glo. Their aunt I am in law, in loue their mother; Then feare not thou, Ile beare thy blame,

And take thy office from thee on my perill.

Lieu. I doe befeech your graces all to pardon me: I am bound by oath, I may not docit. Enter L. Stanles.

Stan. Let me but meete you Ladies an houre hence, And He falute your grace of Yorke, as Mother: And reuerente looker on, of two faire Queenes. Come Madam, you must go with me to Westminster, There to be crowned, Richards royall Queene.

Qu. O cut my lace in funder, that my pent heart, May have some scope to beate, or else I found,

With this dead killing newes.

Dor, Madam, have comfort, how fares your grace? Qu, O Dorfet speake not to me, get thee hence, Death and destruction dogge thee at the heeles, Thy Mothers name is ominous to children, If thou wilt outfirip death, go croffe the feas, And live with Richmond, from the reach of hell, Go hie thee, hie thee from this slaughter house, Least thou increase the number of the dead,

And make me die the thrall of Margarets curlie, Nor Mother, Wife, not Englands counted Queene. Stan. Full of wife care is this your counfell Madam, Take all the swift advantage of the time, You shall have letters from me to my sonne, To meete you on the way, and welcome you, Be not tane tardic, by vnwise delaie:

Duch. yor. O ill dispersing winde of miserie, O my accurled wombe, the bed of death,

A-Coca-

A Cocatrice hast thou hatch to the world, Whose vnauoided eye is murtherous.

Star. Come Madam, I in all haft was fent, Duch. And I in all vnwillingnes will go, I would to God that the inclusive verge, Of golden mettall that must round my browe, were red hotte steele to seare me to the braine, Annointed let me be with deadlie poy son, And die, ere men can say, God saue the Queene.

Qu. Alas poore foule, I enuie not thy glorie, To feede my humor, with thy felfe no harme.

Duch. glo. No, when he that is my husband now Came to me as I followed Henries course, When scarse the bloud was well washt from his handes, Which islued from my other angel husband, And that dead faint, which then, I weeping followed. O, when I say, I lookt on Richards face, This was my with, be thou quoth I accurit, For making me to young, to olde a widow, And when thou wedst, let forrow haunt thy bed, And be thy wife, if any be so madde, Asmilerable by the death of thee, As thou half made me by my deare Lordes death, Loe, eare I can repeate this curse againe, Euen in so short a space, my womans hart. Groffelie grewe captiue to his honie wordes, And proud the subjecte of my owne soules curse. Which ever fince hath kept my eyes from fleepe. For never yet, one houre in his bed, Haue I enjoyed the golden dew of fleepe. But have bene waked by his timerous dreames, Besides, he hates me for my father Warwicke, And will no doubt, shortlie berid of me.

Qu. Alas poore soule, I pittie thy complaints,
Duch. glo. No more then from my soule I mourne for yours.

Dor. Farewell, thou wofull welcomer of gloric.

Duch. gro. Adew poore foule, thou takif thy leave of it.
Du. yor. Go thou to Richmond, and good fortune guide thee.

Goe

The Tragedie

Go thou to Richard, and good Angels garde thee, Go thou to fanctuarie, good thoughts possessed thee, I to my graue where peace and rest lie with me, Eightie odde yeares of sorrow haue I seene, And each houres ioy wrackt with a weeke ofteene.

The Trumpets found, Enter Richard crownd, Bucking - ham, Catesby with other Nobles.

King Standal apart. Coolin of Buckingham,

Giue methy hand!

Here be ascendeth

Thus high by thy aduice

And thy affiftance is king Richard feated: But shal we weare these honours for a day? Or shall they last, and we resoice in them.

Buc. Stilliue they, and for euer may they lalt.
King Ri. O Buckingham, now do I plaie the touch,

To trie if thou be currant gold indeed:

Young Edwardliues: thinke now what I would fay.

Buc. Saie on my gracious soueraigne.

King Whie Buckingham, I faie I would be king. Buc. Whie so you are my thrice renowned liege. King Ha: am I king? tis so, but Edward liues.

Buc. True noble prince.

King O bitter consequence, That Edward still should live true noble prince.

Coofin, thou wert not wont to be so dul: Shal I be plaine? I wish the bastards dead,

And I would haueit suddenlie performde, What faist thou? speake suddenlie, be briefe.

Euc. Your grace may doe your pleasure.

King Tut, tut, thou art all yee, thy kindnesse freezeth,

Saie, have I thy consent that they shal die?

Buc. Giue me some breath, some little pause my lord,

Before I positiuelie speake herein: I wil resolue your grace immediatlie.

Exit.

Catef. The king is angrie, see, he bites the lip.

King I wil converse with iron witted sooles
and was specified the being more are formed.

And varespective boies, none are for me That looke into me with considerate eies;

Boy, high reaching Buckingham growes circumspect.

Boy. My Lord.

King, Knowst thou not any whom corrupting gold

Would tempt vnto a close exploit of death.

Boy. Mylord, I know a discontented gentleman, Whose humble meanes match not his haughtie mind,

Gould were as good as twentic Orators, And will no doubt tempt him to any thing.

King. What is his name.

Boy. His name my Lord is Tirrell.

King. Go call him hither presentlie, The deepe revoluing wittie Buckingham, No more shall be the neighbour to my counsell,

Hath he follong held out with me yntirde And stops he nowefor breath?

Enter Darby.

How now, what neewes with you?

Darby. My Lord, I heare the Marques Dorset

Isfled to Richmond, in those partes beyond the seas where he abides.

King. Catesby. Cat. My Lord.

King. Rumor it abroad

That Anne my wife is sieke and like to die, I will take order for her keeping close:

Enquire me out some meane borne gentleman,

Whom I will marrie straight to Clarence daughter, The boy is foolish, and I feare not him:

Looke how thou dreamst: I say againe give out

That Annemy wife is sicke and like to die,

About it, for it stands me much vpon

To stop all hopes whose growth may damadge me,

I must be married to my brothers daughter,

Or elle my kingdome stands on brittle glasse,

Murther her brothers, and then marrie her,

Vincertaine vivale of gaine, but I am in So far in bloud that finne vill plucke on fin,

Teare falling pittie dwels not in this cie.

Isthyname Tirrill?

Enter Tirreli

Tyr. Iames Tirrell and your most obedient subject.

King Artthou indeed?

Tir. Proue me my gracious soueraigne,

King Darstthouresolue to kill a friend of mine?

Tir. I my Lord, but I had rather kill two enemies.

King Why there thou hast it two deepe enemies, Foesto my rest, and my sweet sleepes disturbs,

Are they that I would have thee deale vpon: Tirrel I meane those bastards in the tower.

Tir. Let me have open meanes to come to them,

And soone ile rid you from the feare of them.

King Thou sings sweet musicke. Come hither Tirrel, Goby that token, rise and lend thine care, he mispers in his eare, Tisno more but so, saic is it done,

And I will love thee and prefer thee too.

Tir. Tis done my gracious lord.

King Shal we heare from thee Tirrel ere we fleep? Enter Buc.

Tir. Ye shall my lord,

Buck, My lord, I have confidered in my mind, The late demand that you did found me in.

King Well, let that passe, Dorset is fled to Richmond.

Buck I heare that newes my lord.

King Stanle, he is your wifes sonnes. Wellooke to it.

Buck. My lord, I claime your gift, my dew by promife,

For which your honor and your faith is pawnd, The Earledome of Herford and the moueables,

The which you promifed I should possesse.

King Stanley looke to your wife, if the conuay Letters to Richmond you shall answere it.

Buck. What saies your highnes to my just demand.

King As I remember, Henrie the fixt

Did prophecie that Richmond should be king,

When Richmond was a little peeuish boy:

Aking perhaps, perhaps, Buck. My lord.

King How chance the prophet could not at that time,

Hauetold me I being by that I should kill him.

Buck. My lord, your promise for the Earledome.

King Richmond, when last I was at Exeter, The Major in curtesse showd methe Castle,

And called it Ruge-mount, at which name I started, Because a Bard of Ireland told me once I should not live long after I saw Richmond.

Buck. My lord.

King. I, whats a clocke?

Buck. I am thus bold to put your grace in mind

Of what you promised me.

King. Wel, but whats a clocked Buck. Vpon the stroke of ten. King. Well, let it strike.

Buck. Whieletit strike?

King. Because that like a Lacke thou keepst the stroke
Betwixt thy begging and my meditation,

I am not in the giuing vaine to day.

Buck. Whie then resolue me whether you wil or no?

King. Tut, tut, thou troublest me, I am not in the vain.

Buck. Is it cuen so, rewards the my true service With such deepe contempt, made I him king for this? O let me thinke on Hastings and be gone To Breenock while my searefull head is on.

Exit,

Enter Sir Francis Tirrell. Tyr. The tyrranous and bloudie deed is done, The most arch-act of pitteous massacre, That ever yet this land was guiltie of, Dighton and Forrest whom I did suborne, To do this ruthles peece of butcherie, Although they were fleshe villains, bloudie dogs, Melting with tendemes and kind compassion, Weptlike two children in their deaths fad stories: Lo thus quoth Dighton laie those tender babes, Thus thus quoth Fortest girdling on another, Within their innocent alablaster armes, Their lips were foure red Roses on a stalke, Which in their fummer beautie kill each other, A booke of praiers on their pillow laie, Which once quoth Forrest almost changed my mind, But 6 the Diuell their the villaine stopt, Whilft Dighton thus told on we smothered

The

The most replenished sweet worke of nature,
That from the prime creation ever he framed,
Thus both are gone with conscience and remorse,
They could not speake and so I lest them both,
To bring this tidings to the bloudie king.

Enter K. Richard.
And here he comes, all haile my soveraigne leige.

King. Kind Tirrell am I happie in thy newes.
Tyr. If to haue done the thing you gue in charge,

Beget your happinesse, be happie then For it is done my Lord.

King. But didft thou fee them dead?

Tir. I did my Lord.

King. And buried gentle Tirrell?

Tir. The Chaplaine of the tower hath buried them,

But how or in what place I do not know.

Tir. Come to me Tirrel soone at after supper,
And thou shalt tell the processe of their death,
Meane time but thinke how I may do thee good.
And be inheritor of thy desire.

Exist Tirrel.
Farewel til soone.

The sonne of Clarence haue I pent vp close,
His daughter meanelie haue I matcht in manage,
The sonnes of Edward sleepe in Abrahams bosome,
And Anne my wise hath bid the world godnight,
Now for I know the Brittaine Richmond aimes
Atyoung Elizabeth, my brothers daughter,
And bythat knot lookes proudly ore the crowne,
To her I go a iollie thriuing woer,

Enter Catesby.

Cat. My Lord.

King. Good newes or bad that thou comft in fo bluntly? (ates. Bad newes my lord, Ely is fled to Richmond, And Buckingham backt with the hardie Welchmen, Is in the field, and fill his power increaseth.

King. Ely with Richmond troubles me more neare Then Buckingham and his rash leuied armie:
Come I haue heard that feareful commenting,
Isleaden servitour to dull delaie,
Delaie leades impotent and snaile-pact beggerie,
Then sierie expedition be my wing,

Toucs

Ioues Mescurie and Herald for a king:
Come muster men, my counfaile is my shield,
We must be briefe when traitors braue the field.

Exeunt.

Enter Queene Margaret sola.

Q. Mar. So now prosperitie begins to mellow
And drop into the rotten mouth of Death:
Here in these confines slille haue I lurkt,
To watch the waining of mine aduersaries:
A dire induction am I witnesse to,
And wil to Fraunce, hoping the consequence
Wil prooue as bitter, blacke and tragical.
Withdraw thee wretched Margaret, who comes here?

Enter the Qu. and the Dutchesse of Torke.

Qu. Ah my young princes, ah my tender babes!

My vinblowing flowers, new appearing sweets,

If yet your gentle soules flie in the ayre

And be not fixt in doome perpetual,

Houer about me with your aicrie winges,

And heare your mothers lamentation.

Qu. Mar. Houer about her, saie that right for right, Hath dirnd your infant morne, to aged night.

Quec. Wilt thou, O God, flie from such gentle lambes,
And throw them in the intrailes of the Wolfe:
When didst thou sleepe when such a deed was done?

Q. Mar. When holie Harry died, and my sweet sonne.
Dutch. Blind sight, dead life, poore mortal lining ghost,
Woessceane, worlds shame, graves due by life vsurpt,
Rest thy wrest on Englands lawful earth,

Valawfullie made drunke with innocents bloud.

Qs. O that thou wouldft as wel affoord a graue,
As thou canst yeeld a melancholie seate,
Then would I hide my bones, not rest them here:
O who hath anie cause to mourne but I!

Dueb. So manie miseries haue crazd my voice That my woe-wearied toong is mute and dumbe. Edward Plantagenet, whie art thou dead?

Qu. Mar. It ancient forrow be most reuerent, Giue mine the benefite of signorie,

I 2

And

And let my woes frowne on the vpper hand,
If forrow can admitte focietie,
Tell ouer your woes againe by vewing mine,
I had an Edward, till a Richard kild him:
I had a Richard, till a Richard kild him:
Thou hadft an Edward, till a Richard kild him:
Thou hadft a Richard, till a Richard kild him:

Duch. I had a Richard to, and thou did ft kill him:

I had a Rutland to, thou hopft to kill him.

Qu, Mar. Thou hadft a Clarence to, and Richard kild him:
From forth the kennell of thy wombe hath crept,
A hel-hound that doeth hunt vs all to death,
That dogge, that had his teeth before his eyes,
To worrie lambes, and lap their gentle blouds,
That foule defacer of Gods handie worke,
Thy wombe let loofe, to chase vs to our graues,
O vpright, just, and true disposing God,
How doe I thanke thee, that this camal curre,
Praies on the issue of his mothers bodie,
And makes her puesellow with others mone.

Duch. O, Harries wifes triumph not in my woes,

God witnes with me, I have wept for thine.

Qu. Mar. Beare with me, I am hungrie for revenge, And now I cloie me with beholding it, Thy Edward, he is dead, that stabd my Edward, Thy other Edward dead, to quitte my Edward, Yong Yorke, he is but boote because both they Match not the high perfection of my loffe, Thy Clarence he is dead, that kild my Edward, And the beholders of this tragicke plaie. The adulterate Hastings, Rivers, Vaughan, Gray, Vntimelie smothred in their duskie graues, Richard yet liues, hels blacke intelligencer, Onely referred their factor to buie foules, And fend them thether, but at hand at handes, enfues his piteous, and ynpittied end, Earth gapes, hell burnes, fiendes roare, faintes praie, To have him fuddenly conucied away.

Cancell

Cancell his bond of life, deare God I pray, That I may liue to fay, the dog is dead.

Qu. O thou didft prophecie the time would come, That I should wish for thee to helpe me cursse, That botteld spider, that soule bunch-backt toade.

Qu Mar. I cald thee then, vaine floorish of my fortune, I cald thee then, poore shadow, painted Queene, The presentation of, but what I was, The flattering Index of a direfull pageant, One heaued a high, to be hurld downe belowe, A mother onelie, mockt with two fweete babes, A dreame of which thou wert a breath, a bubble, A figne of dignitie, a garifh flagge, To be the aime of eueric dangerous shot, A Queene in least onelie to fill the sceaue, Where is thy husband now, where be thy brothers? Where are thy children, wherein doest thou ioye: Who sues to thee, and cries God saue the Queene? Where be the bending peeres that flattered thee? Where be the thronging troopes that followed thee? decline all this, and fee what now thou art. For happie wife, a most distressed widow, For ioyfull Mother, one that wailes the name, For Queene, a verie caitiue crownd with care, For one being fued to, one that humblie fues, For one commaunding all, obeyed of none, For one that fcomd at me, now fcomd of me, Thus hath the course of instice whe'eld about, And left thee but, a verie praie to time, Hauing no more, but thought of what thou wert, To torture thee the more, being what thou art. Thou didit viurpe my place, and doelt thou not, Viurpe the just proportion of my forrow, Now thy proud necke, beares halfe my burthened yoke, From which, euen here, I flippe my wearie necke, And leave the burthen of it all on thee: Farewell Yorkes wife, and Queene of fad mischance, These English woes, will make mesmile in France.

Qu. O thou wel skild in curies, staic a while, And teach me how to curie mine enemies.

Qu, Mar. Forbeare to sleepe the nights, and fast the daics,
Compare dead happinesse with living woe,
Thinke that thy babes were fairer then they were,
And he that slew them souler then he is,
Bettring thy losse makes the bad causer worse,
Revoluing this, wil teach thee how to cutse.

Qu. My words are dul, O quicken them with thine,
Q. Mar. Thy woes wil make them sharp, & pierce like mine.
Du. Why should calamitie be ful of words? Exit Mar.

Qu. Windie attumies to your Client woes, A erie succeeders of intestate ioies,

Poore breathing Orators of miseries, Let them have scope, though what they do impart, Helpe not at al, yet do they ease the hart.

Duch. It so, then be not toong-tide, go with me, And in the breath of bitter words lets smother My damned sonne, which thy two sweet sons smotherd, I heare his drum, be copious in exclaimes.

Enter K. Richard marching with Drummes

And Trumpets.

King Who intercepts my expedition?

Duch. A she, that might have intercepted thee

By strangling thee in heraccursed wombe,

From all the slaughters wretch, that thou hast done.

Where should be grauen, if that right were right,
The slaughter of the Prince that owed that Crowne,
And the dire death of my two sonnes, and brothers;
Tel me thou villaine slaue, where are my children?

Duch, Thou tode, thou tode, where is thy brother Clarence? And little Ned Plantagenet, his some?

Qu. Where is kind Hastings, Rivers, Vaugham, Gray?

King A flourish trumpets, strike alarum drummes,

Let not the heavens heare these tel-tale women

Raile on the Lords annointed. Strike I saie. The trumpets

Either be patient, and intreat me saire,

Or with the clamorus report of war: Thus will I drowneyour exclamations,

Du. Art thou my son?

King. I, I thanke God, my father and your selfe,

Du. Then patiently here my impatience.

King. Madam I haue a touch of your condition,

Which cannot brooke the accent of reptoofe.

Du. I will be mild and gentle in my speach.

King. Andbriefe good mother for I am in haft,

Du. Art thou so hastie I have staid for thee,

God knowesin anguish, paine and agonie,

King. And came I not at last to comfort you?

Dn. No by the holie roode thou knowst it well,

Thou camft on earth to make the earth my hell,

A greuous burthen was thy berth to me, Techie and waiward was thy infancie,

Thy schoole-daies frightful, desperate, wild, and furious.

Thy prime of manhood, during, bold and venturous,

Thy age confirmed, proud, subtile, bloudie, trecherous,

What comfortable houre canst thou name

That ever grac't me in thy companie?

King, Faith none but Humphrey houre, that cald your grace

To breakefast once forth of my companie,

If I be so disgracious in your sight,

Let me march on, and not offend your grace.

Du. Oheare mespeakefor Ishal neuer see thee more.

K

King. Come, come, you art too bitter.

Du. Either thou wilt die by Gods iust ordinance,

Eeare from this war thou turne a conqueror,

Or I with griefe and extreame age shall perish,

And neuer looke vpon thy face againe,

Therefore take with thee my most heavy curse,

Which in the daie of battaile tire thee more

Then all the compleat armor that thou wearst,

My praiers on the aduerse partie fight,

And there the little foules of Edwards children,

Whisper the spirits of thine enemies,

And promife them successed and victoric,

The Tragedy

Bloudie thou art, bloudie wil bethy end. Shame serves thy life, and doth thy death attend. Exit. Qu. Thoughfar more cause, yet much lesses spirit to curle Abides in me, I faie Amen to all. King. Staie Maddam, I must speake a word with you. Qu. I haue no moe sonnes of the royall bloud, For thee to murther for my daughters Richard, They shalbe praying nunnes not weeping Queenes, And therefore levell not to hit their lives. King You have a daughter cald Elizabeth, Vertuous and faire, roiall and gracious. Qu. And mult the die for this? O let her live! And ile corrupt her maners, staine her beautie, Slandermy felfe as false to Edwards bed Throw ouer her the vale of infamie, So the may live vnskard from bleeding flaughter, I will confeile the was not Edwards daughter. King Wrong not her birth, the is of roial bloud. Qu. To faue her life, ile faie she is not so. Kng Her live is onlie safest in hir birth. Qu. And onlie in that safetie died her brothers. King Loat their births good stars were opposite, Qu. No to their lives bad friends were contrarie, King All vnauoided is the doome of destinie. Qu. True when avoided grace makes destinie, My babes were destinde to a fairer death. If grace had bleft thee with a fairer life. (armes King Madam, to thrive I in my dangerous attempt of holdile As I intend more good to you and yours, Then eueryou or yours were by me wrongd. Qu. What good is coverd with the face of heaven, To be discovered that can do me good, King The aduancement of your children mightie Ladie. Qu. Vp to some scaffold, there to loose their heads. King No to the dignitie and height of honor,

The high imperial tipe of this earths gloric. Qn. Flatter my forrowes with report of it, Tell me what (tate, what dignitie, what honor?

Canft

Can't thou demife to anie child of mine.

King. Euen all I haue, yea and my felfe and all,

Will I withal endow a child of thine,

So in the Lethe of thy angrie foule,

Thou drown the fadd remembrance of those wrongs

Which thou supposed I have done to thee.

Qu. Be briefe, least that the processe of thy kindnes,

Last longer telling then thy kindnes doc.

King. Then know that from my foule I love thy daughter, Qu. My daughters mother thinkes it with her foule.

King. What do you thinke?

Qu. That thou dolt love my daughter from thy foule, So from thy foules love did ft rhou love her brothers, And from my harts love I do thanke thee for it.

King. Be not so hashie to confound my meaning, I meane that with my soule I loue thy daughter, And meane to make her Queene of England.

Qu. Saie then, who dost thou meane shalbe her king?
King. Euen hethat makesher Queen, who should be else?

Qu. What thous

King I euen I, what thinke you of it Maddame?

Qn. How canst thou wood her?
King That would I learne of you.

As one that are best acquainted with her humor.

Qu, And wilt thou learn of mer King Madam with all my hart.

Qu. Send to her by the man that flew her brothers, A paire of bleeding harts thereon ingraue,

Edward and Yorke, then happelie she wil weepe, Therefore present to her as sometimes Margaret Didto thy father, a handkercher steept in Rutlands bloud,

And bid her drie her weeping eies therewith,
If this inducement force her not to loue,

Sendhera storie of thy noble acts,

Tel her thou madstawaie her Vncle Clarence,

Her Vncle Rivers, yea, and for her fake

Madst quicke conveiance with her good Aunt Anne,

King Come, come, you mocke me, this is not the waie.

The Tragedy

To win your daughter.

Qu. There is no other waie

Vnleffe thou couldst put on some other shape, And not be Richard that hath done all this.

King Infer faire Englands peace by this alliance. Qu. Which she shall purchase with still lasting war.

King Sale that the king which may command intreats.
Qu. That at her hands which the kings king forbids.

King Saie she shalbe a high and mightic Queene,

Qu. To waile the title as her mother doth.

King Saie I will loue her euerlastinglie.

Qu. But how long shall that title ever last,
King Sweetlie inforce unto her faire lynes end,

Qu. But how long farely shall her sweet life last?

King Solong asheauen and nature lengthensit.

Qu. So long as hell and Richard likes of it.

King Saie Ther foueraign am her subject loue.

QH. But the your subject loaths such soueraintie.

King Be eloquent in my behalfe to her.

Qu. An honest tale speeds best being plainlie told.

King Then in plaine termes tell her my louing tale.

Qu. Plaine and not honest is to harsh a sile,

King Madame your reasons are too shallow & too quicke

Qu. Ono myrcasons are to deepe and dead.

Too deepe and dead poore infants in their graue, King Harpe not one that firing Madam that is past.

Qu. Harpe on it still shall I till hartstrings breake.

King Now by my George, my Gaster and my crown.

Qu. Prophand, dishonerd, and the third vsurped.

King Isweare by nothing.

Qu. By nothing, for this is no oath,

The George prophand hath lost his holie honor, The Garter blemisht pawnd his knightlie vertue,

The crown vsurpt diffrac't his kinglie dignitie,

If formething thou wilt Iweare to be believed,

Sweare then by formething that thou haft not wrongd.

King Now by the world.
Qu. Tis ful of thy foule wrongs.

King. My Fathers death.
Qu., Thy life hath that dishonord.
King. Then by my selfe.
Qu. Thy selfe thy selfe missies.
King. Whie, then by God.

Qu, Gods wrong is most of all,
If thou hadst feard, to breake an oath by him,
The vnitie the king my brother made,
Had not bene broken, nor my brother slaine.
If thou hadst feard to breake an oath by him,
The emperial limettall circling now thy brow,
Had grast the tender temples of my childe,
And both the princes had bene breathing heere,
Which now, two tender plaie fellowes for dust,
Thy broken saith, hath made a praie for wormes.

King. By the time to come.

Qn. That thou hast wrongd in time orepast,
For I my selfe, haue manie teares to wash,
Hereaster time, for time, by the past wrongd,
The children liue, whose parents thou hast slaughterd,
Vngouernd youth, to waile it in their age,
The parents liue, whose children thou hast butcherd,
Olde withered plantes, to waile it with their age,
Sweare not by time to come, for that thou hast,
Misused, eare vscd, by time misused orepast.

King. As I intend to prosper and repent,
So thriue I in my dangerous attempt,
Of hostile armes, my selse, my selse consound,
Daye yeeld me not thy light, nor night thy rest,
Be opposite, all planets of good lucke,
To my proceedings, if with pure heartes loue,
Immaculate deuocion, holie thoughtes,
I tender not thy beauteous princelie daughter,
In her consistes my happines and thine,
Without her followes to this land and me,
To thee her selse, and manie a Christian soule,
Sad desolation, ruine, and decaie,
It cannot be avoided but by this,

It will not be avoided but this:
Therefore good mother (I must call you so,)
Be the atturney of my loue to her.
Pleade what I will be, not what I hauebene,
Not by desertes, but what I will deserue,
Vrge the necessitie and state of times,
And be not pieuish, fond in great designes.

Qu. Shall I be tempted of the diuell thus.

King. I, if the diuell tempt thee to doe good.

Qu. Shall I forget my selfe, to be my selfe.

King. I, if your felfes remembrance, wrong your felfe.

Qu. But thou did kill my children.

King. But in your daughters wombe, I buried them, Where in that neft of spicerie they shall breed, Selfes of themselves, to your recomfiture.

Qu. Shall I go winne my daughter to thy will.
King. And be a happie mother by the deede,

Qu. Igoc, write to me verie shortlie.

King. Beare her my true loues kisse, farewell. Exit.

Relenting soole, and shallow changing woman. Enter Rat.

Rat. My gracious Soueraigne on the westerne coast,

Rideth a puissant Nauie. To the shore,
Throng manie doubtfull hollow harted friendes,
Vnarmd, and vnresolud to beate them backe:
Tisthought that Richmond is their admirall,

And there they hull, expecting but the aide, Of Bucking ham, to welcome them a shore.

King. Some light footefriend, post to the Duke of Norss.

Ratcliffe thy selfe, or Catesbie, where is hee?

Cat. Heremy Lord.

King. Flie to the Duke, post thou to Salisburie, When thou comst there, dull vnmindfull villaine, Whiest and state the Duke.

Cat. First mightie Soueraigne, let me know your minde,

What, from your grace, I shall deliuer them.

King. O, true good Catelbie, bid him leuie straight,

The greatest strength and power he can make, And meete me presentile at Salisburie.

Rat. What is it your highnes pleasure, I shall do at Salisbu-King. Whie? what wouldst thou doethere before I goe? (ry,

Rat. Your highnes told me I should post before.

King. My mind is changd fir, my minde is changd.

How now, what newes with you?

Enter Darbie.

Dar. None good my Lord, to please you with the hearing,

Nor none so bad, but it may well be told.

King. Hoiday, a riddle, neither good, nor bad: Why doelf thou runne so many mile about,

When thou mailt tell thy tale a necrer way.

Once more, what newes?

Dar. Richmond is on the Seas.

King. There lethim finke, and be the feason him,

White liverd runnagate, what doeth he there?

Dar. I know not mightie Sourraigne, but by gueffe.

King. Wellfir, as you gueffe, as you gueffe.

Dar. Sturd vp by Dorset, Buckingham, and Elle,

He makes for England, there to claime the crowne.

King. Is the chaire emptie; is the fword vnfwaied?

Is the king dead ? the Empire vnpossest?
What heire of Yorke is there a live but we?

And who is Englands King, but great Yorkesheire,

Then tell me, what doeth he vpon the fear

Dar. Vnlesse for that my liege, I cannot guesse,

King Vnlesse for that, he comesto be your liege, You cannot guesse, wherefore the Welshman comes,

Thou wilt revolt, and flie to him I feare.

Dar. No mightie liege, therefore mistrust me not.

King Where is thy power then ? to beate him backe,

Where are thy tennants; and thy followers;

Are they not now upon the Westerne shore: Safe conducting, the rebels from their ships.

Dar, No my good Lord, my friendes are in the North.

King. Cold friends to Richard, what doethey in the North?

When they should serue, their Soueraigne in the West.

Dar. They have not bin commaunded, mightie foueraigne.

Please it your Maiestie to give me leave,

Ile mu-

Ile muster vp my friendes and meete your grace, Where, and what time, your Maiestie shall please.

King. I, I, thou wouldest be gone, to joyne with Richmond,

I will not trust you Sir.

Dar. Most mightie Soueraigne, You have no cause to hold my friendship doubtfull, I never was, nor never will befalle.

King. Well, go muster men, but heare you, leaue behinde, Your sonne George Stanlie, looke your faith be firme, Or else, his heads assurance is but fraile.

Dar. So deale with him, as I proue true to you.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. My gracious Soueraigne, now in Deuoashire, As I by friendes am well aduertised, Sir William Courtney, and the haughtie Prelate, Bishop of Exceter, his brother there, With manie mo confederates, are in armes.

Enter another Messinger.

Mess. My Liege, in Kent the Guilfordes are in armes,
And everie houre more competitors,
Flocke to their aide, and still their power increaseth.

Enter another Messenger.

Mes. My Lord, the armie of the Duke of Buckingham.

He striket b bim.

King. Out on you owles, nothing but fongs off death.

Take that vntill thou bring me better newes.

Mef. Your grace mistakes, the newes I bring is good, My newes is that by sudden floud, and fall of water, The Duke of Buckinghams armie is disperst and scattered, And he himselfe fled, no man knowes whether,

King. O I crie you mercie, I did mistake, Ratclisse reward him, for the blow I gaue him, Hath any well aduised friend given out, Rewardes for him that brings in Buckingham.

Mef. Such proclamation hath bene made my liege.

Enter another Messenger.

OMes. Six Thomas Louel, and Lord Marques Dorset,

Tissaid my liege, are vp in armes,

Yet this good comfort bring I to your grace,
The Brittaine nauie is disperst, Richmond in Dorshire
Sent out a boate to aske them on the shore,
If they were his assistants yea, or no:
Who answered him, they came from Buckingham,
Vpon his partie, he mistrusting them,
Hoist fale, and made away for Brittaine.

King. March on, march on, fince we are vp in armes, If not to fight with forreine enemies, Yet to beate downe, these rebels here at home.

Enter Catesbie.

Cat. My liege, the Duke of Buckingham is taken, Thats the best newes, that the Earle of Richmond, Is with a mightic power lauded at Milford, Is colder tidings, yet they must be told.

King. Away towardes Salisburie, while we reason here,
A royall battell might be wonne and loft,
Some one take order, Buckingham be brought,
To Salisburie, the rest march on with me.

Exempt.

Entee Darbie, Sir Christopher.

Dar. Sir Christopher, tell Richmond this from me,
That in the stie of this most bloudie bore,
My sonne George Stanlie is franckt vp in hold,
If I revolt, off goes young Georges head,
These of that, with holdes my present aide,
But tell me, where is princelie Richmond now?

Christopher of the standard of the standard

Christ. At Pembroke, or at Harford-west in Wales.

Dar. What men of name refort to him.

S.Christ. Sir Walter Herbert, a renowned souldier, Sir Gilbert Talbot, Sir William Stanlie, Oxford, redoubted Pembroke, Sir Iames Blunt, Rice vp Thomas, with a valiant crew, With many moe of noble fame and worth, And towardes London they doe bend their course, If by the way, they be not fought with all.

Dar. Retourne vnto thy Lord, commend me to him, Tell him, the Queene hath hartelie confented, He shall espouse Elizabeth her daughter,

The Tragedy

These letters will resolue him of my minde. Farewell.

Excunt.

Enter Bucking ham to execution.

Buck, Will not king Richard let me speake with him.

Rat. No my Lord, therefore be patient.

Buck, Hallings and Edwardschildren Rivers Grav.

Buck. Hastings, and Edwardschildren, Riuers, Gray, Holie king Henrie, and thy faire some Edward, Vaughan, and all that have miscarried, By underhand corrupted, soule iniustice, If that your moodie discontented soules, Doe through the cloudes, behold this present houre, Euen for revenge, mocke my destruction.

This is Alsoules day sellowes, is it not?

Rat. It ismy Lord.

Buck. Whie then Alfoules day, is my bodies domefday; This is the day, that in king Edwards time, I wisht might fall on me, when I was found, False to his children, or his wives allies: This is the day, wherein I wisht to fall, By the falle faith, of him I trusted most: This, this Alfoules day, to my fearefull foule, Is the determind respit of my wrongs: That high al-feer, that I dallied with, Hath turnd my fained prayer on my head, And given in earnest what I begd in iest. Thus doeth he force the fwordes of wicked men, To turne their owne pointes, on their Maisters bosome: Now Margarets curfe, is fallen vpon my head, When he quorh she, shall split thy hart with forrow. Remember, Margaret was a Prophetesse, Come firs, convey me to the blocke of hame, Wrong hath but wrong, and blame the dew of blame. Enter Richmond with drums and trumpets.

Rich. Pellowes in armes, and my most louing friendes, Bruisd vnderneath the yoake of tyrannie, Thussarre into the bowels of the land, Haue we marcht on without impediment. And here receive we, from our Pather Stanlie,

Lines

Lines of faire comfort, and incouragement, The wretched, bloudie, and ylurping bore, That spoild your somer-fieldes, and fruitfull vines, Swils your warme bloud like wash; and makes his trough, In your inboweld bosomes, this foule swine, Lies now even in the center of this Ile, Neare to the towne of Leycelter as we learne: From Tamworth thether, is but one dayes march, In Gods name cheerelie on, couragious friendes, To reape the haruest of perpetuall peace, By this one bloudic triall of sharpe warre.

1 Lo. Eueric mans conscience is a thousand swordes,

To fight against that bloudie homicide.

2 Lo. 1 doubt not but his friendes will flie to vs.

3 Lo. He hath no friendes, but who are friendes for feare, Which in his greatest neede will shrinke from him.

Rich. All for our vantage, then in Gods name march, True hope is swift, and flies with Swallowes wings, Kingsit make Gods, and meaner creatures kings. Exit.

Enter King Richard, Norffolke, Ratcliffe,

Cate bie with others. King. Here pitch our tentes, euen here in Bosworth field, Whie, how now Catesbie, whie lookst thou so bad. Cat, My hart is ten times lighter then my lookes.

King, Norffolke, come hether.

Norffolke, we must have knockes, ha, must we not? Norff. We must both give, and take, my gracious Lord.

King. Vp with my tent there, here will I lie to night, But where to morrow, well, all is one for that:

Who hath discried the number of the foe.

Norff. Sixe or feuen thousand is their greatest number. King. Whie our battalion trebles that account, Besides, the Kings name is a tower of strength, Which they ypon the adverse partie want, Vp with my tent there, valuant gentlemen, Let vs furuey the vantage of the field, Call for some men of sound direction, Lets want no discipline, make no delaie,

For

For Lordes, to morrow is a busic day.

Excunt.

Enter Richmond with the Lordes, &c.

Rich. The wearie sonne hath made a golden sete, And by the bright tracke of his sierie Carre,

Giues fignall of a goodlie day to morrow,

Where is Sir William Brandon, he shall beare my standerd,

The Earle of Pembroke keepe his regiment,

Good captaine Blunt, beare my good night to him,

And by the fecond houre in the morning, Defire the Earle to fee me in my tent.

Yet one thing more, good Blunt before thou goeft:

Where is Lord Stanlie quarterd, doest thou know.

Blunt. Vnlesse I have mistane his coulers much,

Which well I am affur'd, I have not done, Hisregiment, lies halfea mile at least,

South from the mightie power of the king.

Rich. If without penill it be possible,

Good captaine Blunt beare my good night to him, And give him from me, this most needefull scrowle.

Blunt. Vpon my life my Lord, lle vndertake it,

Rich. Farewell good Blunt.

Giue me fome inke, and paper, in my tent, Ile drawe the forme, and modle of our battel, Limit each leader to his feuerall charge, And part in iust proportion our small strength, Come, let vs consult vpon to morrowes busines, In to our tent, the aire is rawe and cold,

Enter king Richard, Norff, Ratcliffe Catelbie, &c.

Kng. Whatisa clocke.

Cat. It is fixe of clocke, full supper time,

King. I will not sup to night, give me some inke and paper,

What? is my beuer easier then it was?, And all my armour laid into my tent?

Cat, It is my Liege, and all thinges are in readines.

King. Good Nortfolke, hie thee to thy charge,

Vie carefull watch, chuse trustie centinell.

Norff. I goe my Lord.

Sturr

King. Stur with the Larke to morrow gentle Norffolke.

Nor. I warrant you my Lord.

King. Catesby. Rat. Mylord,

King. Send out a Pursuant at armes

To Stanlers regiment, bid him bring his power

Before fun rising, least his sonne George fall

Into the blind caue of eternal night.

Fill me a bowle of wine, giue me a watch,

Saddle white Surrey for the field to morrow,

Looke that my saues be sound and not too heavy Ratliffe.

R. t. My lord.

King. Sawst thou the melancholic Lo Northumberland

Rat. Thomas the Earle of Surrey and himselfe, Much about cockshut time, from troupe to troupe Went through the army cheering vp the soldiors.

King. So I am fatisfied, give me a boule of wine, I have not that alacrity of spirit
Nor cheere of mind that I was wont to have:
Set it down. Is inke and paper ready?

Rat. It is my lord.

King Bid my guard watch leaue me.
Ratliffe about the mid of night come to my tent
And helpe to armeme: leaue me I fay.

Exit.Ratliffe

Enter Darby to Richmond in his tent.

Darby. Fortune and victoric fet on thy helme.

Rich. All comfort that the darke night can afford,

Be to thy person noble father in law.

Tel me how fares our louing mother?

Dar. I by atturney bleffe thee from thy mother, Who praies continuallie for Richmonds good, So much for that the filent houres steale on, And slakiedarkenesse breakes within the east, In briefe, for so the season bids vs be: Prepare thy battell earelie in the morning, And put thy fortune to the arbitrement, Of bloudie strokes and mortal staring war, I as I may, that which I would, I cannot,

L 3

With best advantage will deceive the time, And aide thee in this doubful shocke of armes, But on thy fide I may not be too forward. Least being scene thy brother tender George Be executed in his fathers fight. Farewel, the leafure and the fearefull time, Cuts off the ceremonious vowes of love, And ample enterchange of fweet discourse, Which to long fundried friends thould dwelvpon, God give vs leifure for these rights of love, Once more adiew, be valiant and speed well. Rich. Good lordsc onduct him to his regiment: He strive with troubled thoughts to take a nap, Least leaden slumber peife me downe to morrow, When I should mount with wings of victorie, Once more good night kind Lords and gentlemen, O thou whole Captaine I account my selfe, Looke on my forces with a gracious ele: Put in their hands thy brufing Irons of wrath, That they may crush downe with a heaviefall, The viurping helmets of our aduerlaries, Make vs thy ministers of chastifement, That we may praise thee in the victorie, To thee I do commend my watchfull foule, Eare I let fal the windowes of mine eies, Sleeping and waking oh defend me still!

Enter the ghost of young Prince Edward, sonne Harry the sixt, to Ri.

Ghost to Ri. Let me sit heavie on thy soule to morrow. Thinke how thou stabst me in my prime of youth, At Teukesburie, dispaire therefore and die.

To Rich, Be cheerful Richmond for the wronged soules Of Butchered princes fight in thy behalfe, King Henries is such a morrow of the components.

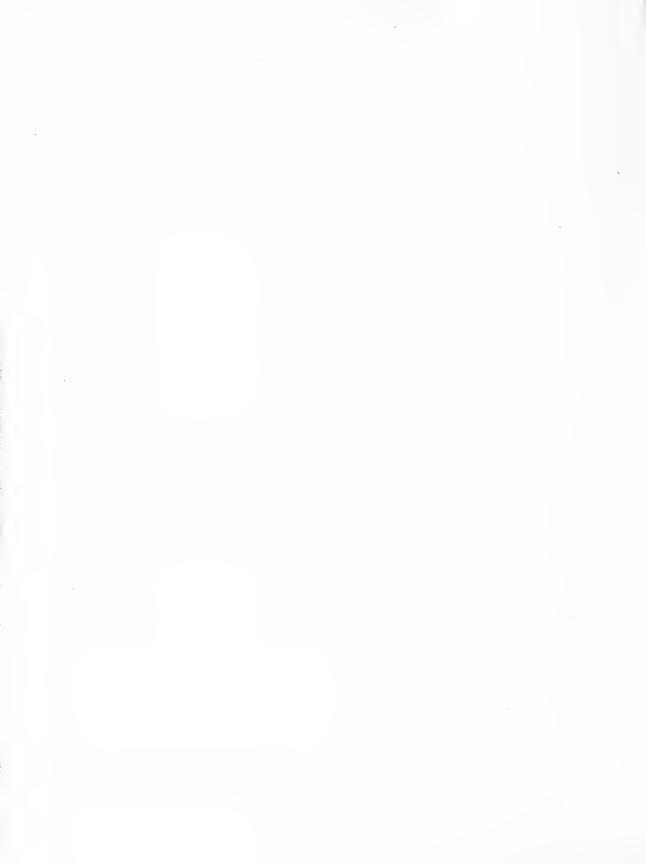

Enter the ghost of Henry the fixt.

Ghost to Ri. When I was mortall my annointed body,
By thee was punchedfull of deadlie holes,
Thinke on the tower and me dispaire and die,

Harrie

Exunt.

Harrie the fixt bids thee dispaire and die.

To Rich. Vertuous and holie be thou conqueror,
Harrie that prophisted thou shoulds be king,
Doth comfort thee in thy sleepe like and shorish.

Enter the Goaft of Clarence.

Ghost. Let me set heavie in thy soule to morrow, I that was washt to death with sulfome wine, Poore Clarence by thy guile betraid to death:

To morrow in the battaile thinke on me, And fall thy edgeles sword, dispaire and die.

To Rich. Thou ofspring of the house of Lancester, The wronged heires of Yorke do pray for thee, God angels guard thy battaile live and florish.

Enter the ghosts of Rivers, Gray, Vaugban. King Let me sit heavie in thy soule to morrow,

Rivers that died at Pomfret, dispaire and die,

Gray. Thinke vpon Graie, and let thy foule dispaire.

Vaugh. Thinke vpon Vaughan, and with guiltie seare,
Let fall thy launce, dispaire and die.

Allto Ri. Awake and thinke our wrongs in Richards bosome,

Wel conquer him, awake and win the daie.

Enter the ghosts of the two yong Princes.

Ghost to Ri. Dreame on thy Coosens smothered in the tower,
Let vs be lead within thy bosome Richard,
And weigh thee down to ruine, shame, and death,
Thy Nephewes soules bid thee dispaire and die,
To Rich. Sleepe Richmond sleepe, in peace and wake in ioy,
Good angels guard thee from the bores annoy,
Liue and beget a happie race of kings,
Edwards vnhappie sonnes do bid thee florish.

Enter the ghost of Hastings.

Ghost Bloudie and guiltie, guiltilie awake,
And in a bloudie battaile end thy daies,
Thinke on lord Hastings, dispaire and die.

To Rich. Quiet vntroubled soule, awake, awake,
Arme, fight and conquer for faire Engiands sake.

Enter the ghost of Lady Anne his mise.

Richard thy wife, that wretched Annethy wife,

The Tragedie

7 hat neuer flept a quiet houre with thee,
Now fils thy fleepe with preturbations,
To morrow in the battaile thinke on me,
And fall thy edgeles fword despaire and die.
To Rich. Thou quiet soule, fleepe thou a quiet fleepe,
Dreame of successe and happie victorie,
Thy adversaries wife doth praie for thee.

Enter the Goaft of Buckingham.
The first was I that helpt thee to the crown,
The last was I that felt thy tyrrannie,
O in the battaile thinke on Buckingham,
And die in terror of thy giltinesse,
Dreameon, dreame on, of bloudie deeds and death,
Fainting, despaire, desparing yeeld thy breath,
To Rich. I died for hope ere I could lend thee aid,
But cheare thy heart, and be thou not dismaid,
God and good angels fight on Richmons side,
And Richard fals in height of all his pride.

Richard starteth up out of a drea " e. King Ri. Giue me another horse, bind vp my wounds, Have mercie Ielu: foft, I did but dreame, O Coward conscience, how dost thou afflict me? The lights burne blew, it is now dead midnight, Cold fearefull drops stand on my trembling stell, What do Ifeare?my felfertheres none elfe by, Richard loues Richard, that is I and I, Is there a murtherer here? no. Yes I am, Then flie, what from my felfe? great reason whie? Least I revenge. What my selfe vpon my telle? Alacke I love my felfe, wherefore? for anic good That I my felfe have done vnto my felfe; O no alas I rather hate my felfe, For hatefull deedes committed by my felfe, I am a villaine, yet I lie I am not, Foole of thy felfe speake well foole do not flatter, My conscience hath a thousand severall tongues, And euerietongue brings in a feueral tale, And euerie tale condemns me for a villaine.

Periurie, periurie, in the highest degree,
Murther, sterne murther, in the dyrest degree,
All seuerall sinnes, all vide in each degree,
Throng to the barre, crying all guiltie, guiltie.
Is hall dispaire, there is no creature loues me,
And if I die, no soule will pitie me:
And wherefore should they, since that I my selfe,
Finde in my selfe, no pitie to my selfe.
Me thought the soules of all that I had murtherd,
Came to my tent, and every one did threat,
To morrows vengeance on the head of Richard.

Enter Raicliffe.

Rat. My Lord.

King. Zoundes, who is there?

Rat. Ratcliffe, my Lord, tis I, the earlie village cocke, Hath twife done falutation to the morne, Your friendes are yp, and buckle on their armor.

King. O Ratcliffe, I have dreamd a fearefull dreame, What thinkst thou, will our friendes prove all true?

Rat. No doubt my Lord.

King. O Ratcliffe, I feare, I feare.

Rat. Nay good my Lord, be not afraid of shadowes.

King By the Apostle Paul, shadowesto night, Haue stroke more terror to the soule of Richard, Then can the substance of ten thousand souldiers, Armed in proofe, and led by shallow Richmond. Tis not yet neere day, come, go with me, Vnder our tents Ileplaie the ease dropper, To see if any meane to shrinke from me.

Enter the Lordes to Richmond.

Lo. Good morrow Richmond.

Rich. Crie mercie Lordes, and watchfull gentlemen, That you have tane a tardie fluggard here.

Lo. How have you sept my Lord?

Rich. The fweetelt fleepe, and faireft boding dreames, That euer entred in a drowfie head, Haue I fince your depature had my Lordes, м.

Exeunt.

The Tragedy

Methought their foules, whose bodies Richard murtherd, Came to my tent, and cried on victorie, I promise you, my soule is verie Iocund, In the remembrance of so faire a dreame.

How farre into the morning is it Lordes?

Lo. Vpon the stroke of source.

Rich. Whie, then tistime to arme, and give direction.

His oration to his souldiers. More then I have faid, louing countriemen, The leafure and inforcement of the time, Forbids to dwell vpon, yet remember this, God, and our good cause, fight ypon our fide, The praiers of holy Saints and wronged foules, Like high reard bulwarkes, stand before our faces, Richard, except those whome we fight against, Had rather have vs winne, then him they follow: For, what is he they follow? truelic gentlemen, A bloudie tirant, and a homicide. One raifd in bloud, and one in bloud established, One that made meanes to come by what he hath, And flaughtered those, that were the meanes to helpe him. A base soule stone, made precious by the soile, Of Englands chaire, where he is fallely fet, One that hath euer bene Gods enemie. Then if you fight against Gods enemie, God will in inflice, ward you as his fouldiers, If you doe sweate to put a tyrant downe, You sleepe in peace, the tyrant being slaine, If you doe fight against your countries foes, Your countries fat, shall paie your paines the hire. If you doe fight in fafegard of your wines, Your wives shall welcome home the conquerors. If you doe free your children from the fword, Your childrens children quits it in yourage: Then in the name of God and all these rightes, Aduaunce your standards, drawe your willing swordes, For me, the raunsome of my bold attempt, Thall be this could corps on the earths cold face:

But if I thriue, the gaine of my attempt, The least of you, shall share his part thereof. Sound drummes and trumpets boldlie, and cheerefullie, God, and Saint George, Richmond, and victorie.

Enter King Richard, Rat. &c.
King. What faid Northumberland, astouching Richmond.

Rat. That he was neuer trained vp in armes.

King He faid the trueth, and what faid Surrey then.

Rat. He similed and said, the better for our purpose, King. He was in the right, and so in deede it is:

Tell the clocke there. The clocke striketh.

Giue me a calender, who faw the Sunne to day?

Rat. Not Imy Lord.

King. Then he disdaines to shine, for by the booke, He should have braud the East an hower agoe, A blacke day will it be to some bodie Rat.

Rat. My Lord.

King. The Sunne will not be seene to day,
The skie doeth frowne, and lowre vpon our armie,
I would these dewicteares were from the ground,
Not shine to day: whie, what is that to me?
More then to Richmond, for the selfe-same heaven,
That frownes on me, lookes sadlie vpon him.

Enter Norffolke.

Norff. Arme, arme, my Lord, the foe vaunts in the field, King. Come, buffle, buffle, capacifon my horse, Call vp Lord Standlie, bid him bring his power, I will leade forth, my fouldiers to the plaine, And thus my battaile shall be ordered. My foreward shall be drawen out all in length, Confifting equallic of horse and soote, Our Archers shall be placed in the midst, Iohn, Duke of Norffolke, Thomas Earle of Surrey, shall have the leading of this foote and horse, They thus directed, we will follow, In the matne battle, whose puissance on either side, shall be well winged with our chiefest horse: This, and Saint George to bootes what thinkst thou Norffolke? A good M. 2.

The Tragedy

Nor. A good direction warlike fourraigne, This found I on my tent this morning.

be sheweth him a paper.

Iocky of Norfelke benot so bould, For Dickon thy master is bought and sould.

King A thing deuised by the enemie.
Go gentlemen every man vnto his charge,
Let not our babling dreames affright our soules:
Conscience is but a word that cowards vse,
Deuisd at first to keepe the strong in awe,
Our strong armes be our conscience swords, out law.
March on, ioine bravelie, let vs to it pell mell,
If not to heaven then hand in hand to hell.

His Orution to his army.

What shal I saie more then I have inferd? Remember whom you are to cope withall, A fort of vagabonds, rafcols and runawaies, A scum of Brittains and base lacky pelants, Whom their orecloied country vomits forth, To desperate adventures and assurd destruction, You fleeping fafe they bring to you vnrest, You having lands and bleft with beauteous wifes, They would restraine the one, distaine the other, And who doth lead them but a paltrey fellow,? Long kept in Brittaine at our mothers cost, A milkelopt, one that neuer in his life Felt fo much colde as over shooes in snow: Lets whip these stragglers ore the seas againe, Lash hence these ouerweening rags of France, Their familht beggers wearie of their liues, Who but for dreaming on this fond exploit, For want of means poore rats had hangd themselves, If we be conquered, let men conquer vs, And not these bastard Brittains whom our fathers Haue in their own land beaten bobd and thumpt, And in record left them the heires of shame. Shall these enjoy our lands, lie with our wives? Rauish our daughters, harke I heare their drum, Fight gentlemen of England, fight bold yeomen,

Draw archers draw your arrowes to the head, Spur your proud horses hard, and ride in bloud, Amaze the welkin with your broken staues, What saies lord Stanley, wil he bring his power?

M f. My lord, he doth deny to come, King Off with his sonne Georgeshead. Nor. My lord, the enemie is pass the marsh, After the battaile let George Stanley die.

King Athousand hartsare great within my bosome,
Aduance our standards, set vpon our foes,
Our ancient word of courage faire saint George
Inspire vs with the spleene of sierie Dragons,
Vpon them victorie sits on our helmes.

Exeunt.

Alarum, excursions, Enter Catesby.

Cates. Rescew my lord of Norsfolke, rescew, rescew,
The king enacts more wonders then a man,
Daring an opposite to euerie danger,
His horse is slaine, and all on foot he sights,
Seeking for Richmond in the throat of death,
Rescew faire lord, or else the daie is lost.

Enter Richard.

King Ahorse, ahorse, my kingdome for a horse.

Cates. Withdraw my lord, ile helpe you to a horse.

King Slaue I have set my life vpon a cast,

And I will stand the hazard of the die,

I thinke there be sixe Richmonds in the field,

Five have I slaine to daie in stead of him,

A horse, a horse, my kingdome for a horse.

Alarum, Enter Richard and Richmond, they sight, Richards slain then retrait being sounded. Enter Richmond, Darby, bearing the crowne, with other Lords & cor.

Ri. God and your armes be praifd victorious freends,
The daic is ours, the bloudie dog is dead,
Dar. Couragious Richmond, well hast thou acquit thee,
Loe here this long vsurped roialtie.
From the dead temples of this bloudie wretch,
Haue I pluckt off to grace thy browes withall,
Weare it, enjoy it, and make much of it.

The Tragedie

Rich, Great God of heauen faie Amento all,
But tell me, is yong George Stanley living.

Dar. He is my lord, and fafe in Leicester towne,
Whether if it please you we may now withdraw vs.

Rich. What men of name are slaine on either side?

Iohn Duke of Norffolke, Water Lord Ferris, fr

Robert Brookenbury, & fir William Brandon. Rub. Inter their bodies as become their births. Proclaime a pardon to the foldiers fled. That in submission will returne to vs. And then 25 we have tane the facrament. We will write the white role and the red, Smile heaven vpon this faire confunction, That long have frownd vpontheirenmitie, What traitor heares me, and faies not Amen? England hath long been madde and scard her selfe. The brother blindlie shed the brothers bloud, The father rashlie slaughterd his own sonne, The sonne compeld ben butcher to the fire, All this deuided Yorke and Lancaster, Deuided in their dire deuision. O now let Richmond and Elizabeth, The true fucceeders of each royall house. By Gods faire ordinance conjoine together, And let their heires (God if thy will be fo) Enrich the time to come with smooth-faste peace, With imiling plentie and faire prosperous daies, Abate the edge of traitors gracious Lord, That would reduce these bloudy daies againe, And make poore England weepe in streames of bloud, Let them not live to tast this lands increase, That would with treason wound this faire lands peace, Now civill wounds are stopt, peace lives againe, That she may long live heare, God saie Amen.
